Intellectual America
Valuable Lives
Where Does Russia Get It?
Mexican News, Good, Bad

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

INTELLECTUAL Americans on Thursday paid $300,000 to see Mr. Tom Loughran fight Mr. Jack Sharkey, a Lithuanian, who borrows his fighting name.

The gentlemen, who are "heavyweights" in more senses than one, fought three rounds. Sharkey won. Mr. Loughran "technically knocked out."

The same crowd will pay $300,000 more, later, to see them fight three more rounds, with Mr. Loughran winning.

After that will come the deciding match. Sad, dull days for those who crave brutality.

Of all big business life insurance is biggest. Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., predicts an increase in life insurance from one hundred to two hundred billions by 1940, while discussing problems involved in the investment of fourteen thousand million dollars, held in trust for policy-holders.

Two hundred billion dollars insurance on the people of the United States seems gigantic. But it averages less than $2000 per inhabitant. It's a poor American that isn't worth more than that.

Our high financial powers refuse to recognize Russia's government and that government, unconcerned, continues to show that it understands business.

Even American business might learn some things from Russia.

In the coming year the Soviet government plans to spend six and a half billion dollars on new buildings, industrial plants, factories, power stations, dwellings, schools, large state farms.

Like Mexico, Russia emphasizes especially the importance of more schools.

Wall Street must wonder where the Soviets can find six thousand five hundred million dollars, while our high finance holds thumbs down.

Two pieces of Mexican news, one good, one bad, for Mexico's people. With excellent intention, Mexico plans to let Mexican labor raise itself by its own bootstraps. That is the bad news.

Employers hiring more than 20 workers must make collective contracts, with all.

An employer, for any reason letting men go, even closing down for lack of business, must continue paying wages for three months.

Such laws, if established, would drive capital and prosperity out of Mexico.

It would expel the only auto-

ALL HINGHAM SHAKEN AS DYNAMITE EXPLODES

One Victim Is Blown to Bits; Another Taken to Hospital; Troopers Rushed to Scene

One man was blown to bits, another injured and four dwellings were wrecked when a load of contractor's dynamite exploded in Gardner st., Hingham, this afternoon, rocking the countryside for miles.

State troopers were rushed to the town. For a time it was feared there had been an explosion at the Hingham Arsenal.

The dead man was John Meznote of Quincy, one of nine laborers who were laying a drain pipe through Gardner st Rocco Furseia of Lawrence, another laborer, was taken to Weymouth hospital.

The houses wrecked were those of Walter A. Bagley, James I. Edmands, Richard Lane and Irving Tom Herstine, all located near the scene. The dwellings were shaken off their foundations and furniture inside was thrown about. So far as could be learned none of the occupants were injured.

CARE FOR HOMELESS

Neighbors prepared at once to care for the families made homeless by the blast. The four houses will have to be entirely rebuilt before they can again be occupied.

The nine men were employed by the Peerless Construction Co. of Boston to lay a drain pipe through Gardner st. The pile of dynamite was stored under a tree, which was located about 25 yards from the trench in the middle of the street. The land is owned by the Bagley estate.

WORKER TRIED TO ESCAPE

Witnesses said they saw Meznote working near the dynamite when he suddenly started to run toward the street. Before he had taken 10 steps the blast occurred.

Then ground around the tree is firm and the force of the explosion was thrown upward.

State and town police took possession of the area as soon as the rain of debris stopped and a thorough check-up was made to see that no more unexploded dynamite was lying around loose.

An investigation was started as soon as Medical Examiner John Peterson and authorities arrived. It was first believed a cigarette might have been carelessly thrown on one of the fuses.

The area was roped off after the families in the four wrecked houses left and no one without official business was allowed inside the cordon.

100-Mile Gale Hits Florida Coast

(AP)—At 3:35 o'clock daylight time, this afternoon the Tropical Radio Company had been cut off from communication with its Miami, Florida, station more than half an hour. Efforts were being made, it was said, to "line up" the station.

The last information received by the company regarding weather conditions was received here at 2:25 daylight time and was to the effect that a southeast gale of between 90 and 100 miles an hour was blowing. The sky was overcast and rain was falling. The barometer registered 29:34 inches.

Miami, Sept. 28—The southeast coast of Florida was lashed today by a 65 to 90-mile-an-hour gale that caused heavy damage in several places between this city and Key West.

Wire communication between the latter city and Miami was severed this afternoon when wires were reported down along the coast.

Latest reports said the full forces of the hurricane, which swept the Bahamas early in the week, causing a loss of 20 lives, would not be felt in Florida until later in the day.

North of Key West the wind reached a velocity of 80 miles an hour.

There was some hope that the storm would veer off the southeast tip of the State and spend its fury in the Gulf of Mexico. Storm warnings were issued by the Weather Bureau in Washington for the area south of Miami to Key West.

Key West is boarded up com-

TWO OTHERS SLASHED, ONE IS DYING

Children at Play In Home Attacked by Woman With a Bread Knife

Worcester, Sept. 28—Mrs. Annie Kandral, 37, of Langdon st., seized a bread knife, killed one of her small daughters, wounded another and inflicted probably fatal wounds on a neighbor's child today.

With the knife in hand she then walked to the Lamartine st. police station, threw the weapon at a sergeant and announced she had killed two children.

Declaring her husband had deserted her three years ago and she wished to die in the electric chair, Mrs. Kandral said her only regret was that she had not killed all her children.

Her oldest daughter, Annie, 7, whose right leg was broken and is in a cast, escaped her mother's fury because she was seated on the front piazza at the time and hearing the other children's screams hobbled away.

According to the police, the two children of Mrs. Kandral, Ellen, 4, and Mary, 3, were playing in the house with Lillian Jagolowski, 5, of 23 Langdon st.

Suddenly Mrs. Kandral seized a bread knife and brandishing it in her hand, started for the children. The little ones fled screaming, but the mother caught Ellen and killed her.

She then pursued the other two, stabbing and slashing Lillian so badly the child was reported dying at City Hospital. Mary, slashed across the mouth managed to escape to the open air and safety.

Believing that both Ellen and Lillian were dead, Mrs. Kandral then made her way to the police station. She told police she had been told she was to be put in jail and preferred death in the chair.

For the last three years Mrs. Kandral said she has had a hard time keeping the family together, her husband, Joseph, having run away. She was held without bail on a murder charge and officers were sent to the house. They found Ellen's body and Lillian barely breathing.

'Empty Lobby Box,' Says R. W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Former Ambassador to Italy and Noted Author.

New York, Sept. 28—It appears Shearer will not be lonesome.

When the President dragged him out of the lobby box there was a country-wide demand to drag everything out of the lobby box.

We all wanted to know how much our shipbuilders used Shearer as a lobbyist at the Geneva conference in 1926.

We all wanted to know how much foreign money and effort are being spent in working on us, on our merchant marine and on our navy.

We all wanted to know how much avaricious lobbying is going on in favor of high tariffs.

So far, we have heard little of what Shearer knows, and he may know a lot.

So far, the shipbuilders' testimony has been frivolous and weak; it lets them out a side door.

So far none of these pacifist groups has been pointed out. They ought to be identified by the Senate and made to disclose their radical internationalist affiliations and the source of all their funds.

So far we have learned there is very little justice in the idea that our navy men are "big navy" men. They are a good deal like all of us who want protection of our nation and commerce, safety from being caressed into bad bargains, either as to armament or freedom of the seas for our commerce, and finally an honest reduction in armaments.

So far we have learned little of lobbies, of sentimentalists

M'DONALD SHIP LEAVES FRANCE

Cherbourg, Sept. 28 (AP)—The steamship Berengaria, carrying Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to the United States for his visit to President Hoover, arrived at Cherbourg this afternoon from Southampton, and shortly afterward began her voyage to America.

The voyage of the "peace ship" to Cherbourg was decidedly a pacific one, the sea being smooth as the surface of a sheltered lake in a dead calm.

The MacDonald party was naturally the center of attraction and the crowds at the dock awaiting the arrival and departure of the big boat gave itself over to the pastime of staring at, or following every movement of the British labor leader and his daughter, Isabel, who is accompanying him.

2 DIE IN FIGHT OVER RADIO

Norwalk, Ct., Sept. 28 (AP)—An argument over a radio program early today was responsible for the deaths of two negroes, John Gilbert, 42, a church deacon, and John Burt, 49, of Norwalk. Gilbert died of knife wounds and Burt from bullet wounds.

A remark from Burt about how poor the radio program was, started an argument, culminating in Gilbert shooting Burt after the latter had slashed him with a knife. The argument occurred at the home of Gilbert, where the men had been members of a card party.

Seize 12,000 Bottles of Ale on Lumber Car

North Troy, Vt., Sept. 28 (AP)—Customs agents seized 12,000 bottles of Canadian ale concealed in a shipment of lumber on a freight car here. No arrests were made. The lumber was shipped from Eastman, Que., to the Melrose Packing Box Co. of New Rochelle, N. Y.

The raid was made after customs headquarters at St. Albans had received information that laborers were being paid $30 a night for unloading freight at the local yards.

Here's a Good Idea!

Madrid, Sept. 28 (AP)—The vacation season is still in full sway. Spain probably holds the world's record for length of such holidays. Four months is not unusual. Anything less than a month is a stigma and a cause for grievance.

CITIES OF SOUTHERN FLORIDA LASHED BY 65-MILE HURRICANE

HEADS WEST INTO GULF OF MEXICO

Miami and Key West Struck by Big Wind; Bahamas' Death List May Grow

pletely with all vessels doubly secured and small craft beached. The naval base station has offered to maintain communication between Key West and Nassau if land wires go down.

GALE WRECKS AUTOS

A few automobiles were seen in the streets, but their progress was hindered by the gale. In two instances the wind was seen to rip off the tops of cars. The few pedestrians who ventured into the streets were forced to hold to the sides of buildings and walls or else be blown backward.

The wind was whipping harbor waters into churning eddies and no craft, except those firmly tied to docks, were in evidence.

Biscayne bay, normally placid as a pond, was breaking furiously over the sea wall, and unconfirmed reports reached newspaper offices that passage over the causeway from Miami to Miami Beach involved great hazards because of heavy seas breaking over the roadway.

DEBRIS-STREWN STREETS

In many sections of the city there was evidence of last night's fury and today's continuation of similar conditions. Many palm trees lay on the ground, in many instances snapped off just above the roots.

Likewise damage to houses was in evidence. Some had roofs partly ripped off and others were shorn of their porches.

At 10 o'clock the barometer was 29.44.

At Key West a heavy sea was breaking over the sea wall endangering small craft anchored close to shore and flooding streets running to the waterfront. The government barometer reading at 9 o'clock was 29.42.

KEYS EXPECT BLOW

The gale which has been whipping Fort Lauderdale for 12 hours rose to a 60-mile-an-hour wind late this morning. No great property damage has been reported there.

Orlando reported telephone communication with lower Florida as lost.

Emulating the example of their neighbors to the north, the populace of the Florida keys battened down for a blow. Warnings were relayed to isolated keys. Many houses and stores were boarded up. Shipping was at a standstill in the safest anchored.

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE

News of the disaster at Nassau was many hours reaching the mainland. First word came in the form of a radio message from a ship in Nassau harbor after the city had been isolated more than two days.

Damage to property and shipping was enormous. Many boats were dashed against the shore and broken up. The Princess Montague, en route from Miami to Nassau, went ashore at Tony Rock, but the 33 persons aboard were saved.

Nothing was known of the fate of the Bahamaian and the Isle of June, freighters, with crews totalling 38 men, which were in Bahaman waters when the storm came.

The center of the storm was believed to have passed over Nassau. Radio messages said not a building there escaped damage. The city was flooded with rains and waters from the sea which broke the seawall in their fury.

Electric power was out and it was believed a week would be required for repairs. The terrific winds, which meteorologists said probably reached 100 miles an hour, tore vegetation into shreds and snapped trees.

This was the second disastrous hurricane to visit Nassau within three years. A storm of 1926 destroyed the picturesque sponge fleet.

FEAR FELT FOR SHIPS

Loss of life in that storm could not be established as no one knew how many negro sponge fishermen were with the boats.

Fate of the new fleet was not mentioned in radio dispatches.

Wreck of the Princess Montague was similar to that of the Dorma, British freighter, which went aground Wednesday on Great Isaacs Island and whose 30 men had a narrow escape from the tumultuous seas before managing to secure the lifeboats.

Several vessels were reported today ploughing the windswept seas along the southeast Florida coast, but no distress signals were heard.

As a result of the storm a second exodus, within a week, of inhabitants of the Everglades country was underway today.

Throughout the night the residents moved. High winds, whipping in from the east, caused them to fear there might be immediate danger and they did not expect to be caught, merely for a night of sleep.

Picking up a few belongings, hundreds of these farmer folk hurriedly evacuated. Many cars lined the roadways, some of them going to West Palm Beach, while others went toward the west.

Hotel accommodations in neighboring towns were taxed. Tourists' camps were filled to overflowing. Many slept in their conveyances. Should the storm fail to materialize later in the day and warmer conditions improve, they will pack up and go back.

In the Isle at Nassau the Governor's home was badly damaged, the Baptist Church levelled and slight damage was caused to the Cathedral.

Nassau's famous ceiba tree was denuded and vegetation was whipped to shreds. Streets were flooded by rainfall and water rushed in from the harbor. Officials said the storm was "worse collectively" than any that has struck this section in years.

Havana Is Lashed by Gale From Bahamas

Havana, Sept. 28 (AP)—With unprecedented high seas rolling along the entire north coast, the waves averaging 15 feet in height and with heavy squalls of winds, Cuba was receiving a continuation of a backlash of the Bahama hurricane today. The storm was moving in a southwest direction offering some danger to Havana. Residents are boarding up and taking every precaution. Those along the sea walls and drive have prepared to evacuate if necessary.

Shearer a Minor Issue in Lobby, Says Child

and international bankers who preach war debt propaganda, or of profit-taking, but still hungry interests, who write their own tariff schedules and plant their agents in committees of Congress.

The Hearst press has been able to show that one senator, no matter how innocent his motive, "looked after the interests of his state" by putting a high tariff agent at his own elbow to instruct him.

We want to know something more about whatever facts Shearer has. To make the question of his employment as an agent the main query is to overlook the chance to get out of him, if he has it, information about the real condition of our navy.

If the shipbuilders employed him, they must have believed he knew something about the navy and about the mutual disarmament agreement and how they would affect our safety. Who cares whether we put Shearer in jail, even if we have the right? What counts is the facts he has to tell us before he leaves the stage.

Commended by Gibbons

Floyd Gibbons, the seasoned American correspondent, says of Shearer:

"I met him in Paris after the Geneva conference and again in Washington. I found him highly patriotic and interested in seeing that the United States established actual naval parity with Great Britain."

Wythe Williams, another correspondent, quotes Ambassador Gibson, who was our chief American delegate, as saying of Shearer:

"Whatever criticism may have been leveled against the press of America on his account, all I can say is that the information he handed out was correct."

The incident is not about Shearer in any case.

The lobby box has its cover off! Any disposition of the Senate to pussyfoot around that box, now that President Hoover has started the ball rolling in it, will be recognized by the country as a desire not to know about lobbies and about propaganda campaigns.

We are about to embark upon two major pieces of statesmanship.

Two Great Programs

One is a naval reduction program—from which, sad to say, and dangerous, perhaps, is the omission of agreements with the British as to what shall constitute freedom of the seas if a war comes, not with each other, but a war in which the British may hold the power to interrupt our commerce with her enemies.

When we have limited our capacity to build, we have thrown away our only argument for our interpretation of freedom of the seas.

The other is tariff revision. In this there is one factor to which every decent American or any political party, or in any section, must agree. It must be an honest revision and not settled by furtive legislative agents.

The lobby box is now open.

Peace with an adequate navy—a navy not obsolete.

Legislation for our best interests in revenue and protection.

The exposure of anything Shearer may have said or done is only a seed in the garden. Let the Senate sow and broadcast all the seeds.

MAINE BOY, 16, SHOT, DYING

Kezar Falls, Me., Sept. 28—Theodore Boulette, 16, of this town, is dying from a bullet wound in the temple, received while returning with companions from a dance.

The Fryeburg police are holding Fulton Stanley, 16, also of Kezar Falls. He admits firing the shot, police say, but declares he fired into the air and struck Boulette by accident.

It is alleged that someone in an automobile, in which Stanley was riding, threw a package at Boulette and several other boys who were walking along the road. One of Boulette's party is said to have thrown a stone at the automobile. The shooting followed.

A few minutes later thousands of persons gathered at the fair in Madison Square Garden heard other dots and dashes signifying Hanson's appreciation.

RAPS EVIDENCE OF POWER CO. OFFICERS

Graustein, Hurlburt and Head Assailed in Southern Paper Deal Case

By M. L. RAMSAY
Universal Service

Macon, Ga., Sept. 28—A heated attack on the $600,000 International Paper and Power Co. financing of four Southern newspapers was made by an attorney for William Lavarre in argument of the Hall-Lavarre case.

The attorney, Ellsworth Hall of Macon, sought to show that certain testimony given by Archibald P. Graustein, International president, and W. N. Hurlburt and N. C. Head, vice-presidents, was not credible. These officials figured in the $870,000 loans made to Harold Hall and William Lavarre to buy the papers.

DOUBTS TESTIMONY

"They claim neither Hurlburt, Graustein nor Head, ever saw the contract in the $400,000 deal (the purchase of the Spartanburg Herald and Journal)," Hall declared. "I don't believe it, and I don't believe your honor believes it.

"If they didn't it shows they were acquiring papers recklessly, regardless of original cost, in order to further some ulterior motive."

Tracing the transactions, Hall added:

"Graustein was always in the background, for I'm convinced that they (International) always employed him to know nothing.

"If Graustein had lived in 1833 and 1856 he would certainly have been a member of the 'know-nothing' party."

MAY DECIDE TODAY

Scott Russell, for Harold Hall, conceded that it "may be against public policy" for a great power corporation to finance newspaper purchases, but argued that the honesty of Lavarre's conduct toward Hall was the paramount issue. Hall is seeking to prove partnership and have the alleged partnership dissolved and the papers sold.

Joint promissory notes, joint reports, joint offers for papers, letter heads, telegrams exchanged, and a purported partnership trust agreement whose legal status is disputed, were cited by Russell as evidencing partnership.

Federal Judge Beacon S. Deaver, adjourning court, said argument would be concluded today. He said if "complications" did not arise, he was prepared to give a decision at once.

An advance members of the Boston delegation, headed by Denis Haverty, have been here several days, and James E. HUB IN CAR RATE PLEA TO COURT

Boston today joined Chelsea in the court fight to prevent the 1930 compulsory insurance rates from going into effect.

Charging that the new rates, recently promulgated by State Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown, are "unjust, unreasonable and discriminatory," Mayor Nichols, Henry L. Abbott, James B. Noyes, Nathan A. Heller and John D. Marks filed a petition seeking a writ of certiorari in the Supreme Court.

The petition asks that Brown be compelled to review the case.

The petitioners charge that the zoning system is discriminatory, unjust and unreasonable in that owners of a particular make of car living in one part of the State are compelled to pay more compulsory insurance than owners of a similar make of car living in other parts of the State.

The court is asked to modify the insurance commissioner's order. It is also asked to issue an order or decree declaring the zoning system illegal, improper and inconsistent. An order of notice returnable October 8 was issued.

DAY, SINCLAIR AIDE, TO WED AS HE'S FREED

Oil Man Will Leave on Honeymoon Day He Gets Out of Jail

Washington, Sept. 28 (INS)—Romance has bloomed for Henry Mason Day during the course of his incarceration in the District of Columbia jail.

Immediately upon his release next Thursday, the poker-faced aide to Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire oil operator and sportsman, plans to marry Miss Dorothy M. Rienour, well-known Washington girl.

They will sail at once for Europe. Day, who is vice-president of the Sinclair Exploration Company, is winding up a four-month sentence for hiring the Burns detective agency to spy on the jury that sat in the first criminal conspiracy contempt of court in connection with this same disclosure of espionage.

This will mark Day's second matrimonial venture. His first wife, the former Elizabeth De Selding of Brooklyn, internationally known mezzo-soprano, divorced him in Paris last year while he was standing trial.

The coming bride is a striking blonde, well known to the younger set of the capital. During the last few seasons she has been seen almost nightly at the better supper clubs, and she numbers many of the under-secretaries of the diplomatic corps among her friends.

Mexico's good news tells that the number of her schools has doubled within a year. The government plans public school education for every child, on the American plan.

One year ago Mexico had 2392 schools in rural communities, now those schools number 6013.

The children of peons and their parents are educated at the public expense.

Mexico goes this country one step better by establishing rural movable theaters, where the population may enjoy, without any charge, enlightening and amusing moving pictures.

The crime wave that distresses this country cheers and saves a British manufacturer in Birmingham. He says: "If it were not for large orders from America we should have to go out of business."

This Briton manufactures handcuffs.

Strangely enough, here we have prohibition, with crime increasing.

In Britain, with no prohibition, both crime and drunkenness diminish.

Cesare Rossi, convicted of conspiring to murder Mussolini, goes to jail for 30 years.

Even if all his enemies say of Mussolini were true, it would be an unpatriotic blow at Italy's welfare to endanger Mussolini's life.

Whatever history may say of him 100 years hence, Italy needs him now.

Pescox, who strangled his wife, then poured kerosene over her body and set fire to it, possessed a lawyer who personifies Isocrates saying, "To convince others, be yourself convinced."

This lawyer told the jury he would stake his life that his client "never meant to kill."

If strangling a woman to death and then setting fire to her do not indicate intention to kill, what in your opinion would indicate such an intention?

U. S. Atty. Tuttle to Aid Boston Drive on White Slave Ring

TUTTLE MAN AIDS BOSTON INQUIRY

Reinstein Death Inquiry Reveals Wide Traffic in Girls; U. S. Prosecutor Acts

While Governor Allen and Atty.-Gen. Warner failed to respond to the challenge of U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr today, U. S. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle of New York entered the Boston inquiry into white slave traffic resulting from the murder here of Samuel Reinstein.

Stirred by Tarr's charges that a huge vice ring exists in Boston, with ramifications throughout the East, Tuttle announced he was sending one of his assistants here to obtain information.

He said Thomas T. Cooke will visit Boston Monday to confer with U. S. Atty. Tarr and his chief assistant, Hubert Thompson, and will then make a tour of other eastern cities.

At the same time Atty.-Gen. Oscar J. Heitzen of Rhode Island announced that if federal officials unearth vice conditions in that state he feels it is his duty to cooperate with them.

SAYS STATE SHOULD ACT

Tarr, in his statement, declared the Boston vice ring to have caused at least 50 murders, and probably the corruption of public officials, and that the State authorities should take action regarding these conditions.

Amplifying this statement today he said any evidence of corruption or law violations included in his report are matters for state investigation. As far as his office was concerned, Tarr said it was interested only in violations of the Mann Act.

Governor Allen, when questioned, said nothing had been brought to his attention officially regarding a white slave ring. All he had seen, he said, he had read in the papers.

The Governor then expressed confidence in the ability of the federal forces, the district attorney's office of Suffolk County and the attorney-general's department, need be, to cope with the situation.

WARNER NOT ASKED YET.

Atty.-Gen. Warner said no had received no complaint, and intimated he would take no action unless the district attorney's office showed itself unable to handle the situation. He said he understood, the office of Dist. Atty. Foley was working in full co-operation with the federal authorities.

Atty.-Gen. Heitzen of Rhode Island made it clear he had not asked no requests for assistance, but declared he was ready to give aid at any time. In a big roundup of this kind, he said, he believed it was always best for the different departments to co-operate.

In the meantime Mrs. Ida Stein, arrested at Wrentham in connection with the white slave inquiry, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin J. Jenney, charged with conspiracy to violate the Mann act.

She pleaded not guilty and was held in $5000 for a hearing October 16. Mrs. Stein, who was represented by Attorneys Leo Rogers and Daniel Shea, was remanded to jail, but was expected to get bail.

Evidence obtained in the investigation of the slaying of Rothstein was being prepared today for presentation to federal and Suffolk County grand juries.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Hubert Thompson was handling the preparation of "white slave" cases for the federal authorities, and Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle was busy with murder evidence for presentation to the Suffolk Grand Jury which convenes October 8.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Thompson announced that two men, considered important figures in the white slave "racket," were expected to surrender today.

Warrants have been obtained for these men, and they are expected to appear at the Federal building, with counsel.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Thompson, when questioned regarding the reference to possible corruption of public officials in his chief's statement, said:

"You may rest assured that our investigation will include everything."

Atty. Tarr unequivocably charged that this ring was responsible for 50 murders, eight of them within the last few weeks, and probably the corruption of public officials.

He said the federal law will take action on the transportation of girls from state to state, but it is up to the authorities of Massachusetts to take care of the murders and disorderly houses.

Sleepers Gain Hour on Ol' Man Clock Tonight

Advocates of plenty of sleep may gloat today in a temporary victory over the clock. That hour that seemed so tempting when the clock was set ahead a few months ago, will seem like a blessing tomorrow morning.

For tonight is the night that clocks and watches go back an hour to normalcy. The official hour for the set back is 2 a. m., but few will wait up that late.

Detained in 'Slave' Quiz

Mrs. Ida Stein, with Deputy U. S. Marshal Joseph Winston, photographed leaving Asst. U. S. Dist. Atty. Thompson's office, where the woman had been questioned today in connection with white slavery evidence growing out of the Reinstein murder case. Mrs. Stein was arrested in Wrentham and is held in $5000 under the Mann act.

Hoover Laughs as He 'Sees Himself'

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Full masculine prerogatives at the White House will mean for Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald a glimpse of President Hoover's own, very individual, art gallery.

Reflecting a very human side of Herbert Hoover, the little gallery, a very recent growth, is fast gaining fame in high official circles. It gives a whimsical flavor to that mellow after-dinner moment, while the men have their cigars in the President's study.

The same quiet humor which prompted the President to make his speech on how humble a man must be in the eyes of a fish, also prompted the picture gallery. It covers the walls of a small room adjoining the study, and consists of pencil, pen, and oil portraits, sepia studies and etchings of the President as conceived by widely-scattered artists, mostly amateur.

All have arrived at the White House as gifts since Mr. Hoover took office in March. None was posed for, and several apparently had none too lifelike photographs as inspiration. Several, done with impressionistic flourish and little attempt at likeness, are excellent.

The President walks into his gallery and chuckles to see himself as others see him. The gallery may thus become his winter time substitute for Rapidan fishing which gave him opportunity to see himself as he must appear in the eye of fishes. He tells guests it is his "one man show."

GEORGIA FLOOD IS RECEDING

Augusta, Ga., Sept. 28 (AP)—After the greatest rampage in its history, which carried it to a crest of 46 feet 4 inches, the Savannah river was receding slowly today.

The flood reached its peak about 9 o'clock last night and lingered there until about 1 a. m., then began to fall about an inch an hour. It was down to 45 feet 4 inches at 8 o'clock this morning. The highest mark previously recorded was 40 feet 4 inches in August, 1928.

Safe behind its nine-mile levee, Augusta was high and dry, two small breaks were discovered in the levee, but a force of 50 men checked the flow of water before any damage was done.

Hamburg, S. C., just across the river from Augusta was still under water today, as were the lowlands of North Augusta, S. C. Manufacturing plants in both places were damaged badly.

HOPE FOR VOTE O'LEARY CALLS ON TARIFF TUESDAY

Both Sides in Senate Line Up for Decisive Action on Flexible Provision

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—A vote by 4 p. m. Tuesday on retention of the flexible principle in the pending tariff bill will be sought by Senate Republican leaders.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, said it was present intentions to carry out this plan if all absentees could be rounded up by that time.

With the Senate in recess today for the first time since the tariff debate was started three weeks ago, contending factions were seeking to muster the votes of the few Senators who have hot made up their minds.

A substitute amendment to the flexible provision by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, is pending.

The real test will come on the Simmons proposition.

Some senators claim the issue may be decided by a single vote.

Smoot said Democrats were ready for a ballot if the Republicans provided a pair for Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, now on his way home from Europe. To this Smoot objected.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, independent, injected a new angle into the contest today with an announcement that he would propose an amendment to the Simmons proposal designed to prevent Congress from opening the doors to general revision whenever the tariff commission made a report.

HOPE O'LEARY 'DESERTER'

Curley's Opponent "Apostle of Defeat," Says Ex-State Chairman of Democrats

Michael A. O'Leary, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, branded Frederick W. Mansfield, candidate for mayor in opposition to former Mayor James M. Curley, as a "typical political deserter" and "the apostle of defeat."

These were but two of the many epithets that Mr. O'Leary hurled at Mr. Mansfield in a public letter broadcast to every ward in the city.

The O'Leary letter is entitled "Mansfield's Desertion" and a large printed copy of it appears on the window of the Curley headquarters in Province st.

The letter reads:

RECALLS 1916 DEFEAT

"The Goo Goo candidate sets himself up as the Apostle of Defeat and declares 'I will do it again.'

"In 1916, the workers of the party throughout the state desired to nominate Gen. Charles H. Cole, candidate for Governor with the strongest chance for election. Mr. Mansfield was requested to take second place but declined, saying he was out of politics.

"When plans were developing, Mr. Mansfield, inspired by some source unknown to the Democrats, flip-flopped and made it clear that he was out to defeat the Democratic organization. He jumped in and caused the defeat of Gen. Cole with the result that the Democratic party under Mr. Mansfield suffered its first decisive reverse almost immediately after five victorious years.

BEATEN AGAIN IN 1917

"In 1917, Mr. Mansfield ran again but due to his destructive influence no Democrat would accept a place with him on the party ballot and for the first time in history five major nominations for State office remained unfilled on the primary ballot. Mr. Mansfield had a man run for second place on stickers who was not a Democrat and on election day he received the smallest vote of any candidate in 50 years, 35,000 in Boston.

"The Democratic workers look with equanimity upon Mr. Mansfield's desertion as they regarded him as a heavy liability.

"Just now when all good citizens are striving for leniency the Goo Goos stumble upon the typical political deserter as its standard bearer who, no doubt, is now happily aligned with the forces that cut him."

Years ago she took what little money remained in her possession and turned it over to an undertaker with instructions to see that she was given proper burial.

Then, every day for six years—2,190 times—she telephoned to the undertaker to make sure he hadn't forgotten the instructions.

Yesterday the undertaker failed to receive the customary call. He feared she would be buried in potter's field.

JAPS THREATEN TO BUILD EVEN BIGGER NAVY

Note Says Basis U. S. and Britain Have Fixed Encourages Construction

Tokio, Sept. 28—Instead of reduction, Japan sees increased naval armaments in Anglo-American negotiations.

It is learned here that the Japanese government through Ambassador Matsudaira in London, and Ambassador Debuchi in Washington, has informed Great Britain and the United States of its belief that the level at which Anglo-American cruiser parity has been tentatively fixed is so high that it will compel other nations to enlarge their fleets instead of reducing them.

It is until [illegible] Tokio authorities have expressed the earnest desire that Anglo-American parity, which is expected to provide the starting point of the whole cruiser discussion at the forthcoming arms conference, be established at a point which will make it unnecessary for Japan to construct additional cruisers in order to maintain a proportion adequate to her defensive needs.

Hoover Ready to Stop New Cruiser Building

By FRASER EDWARDS

Washington, Sept. 28—President Hoover is represented officially as determined to have a thorough sifting of the startling charge that American naval officers "conniver" with William B. Shearer, alleged propagandist in the hire of three shipbuilding firms, to wreck the Geneva arms conference in 1927.

It is stated officially at the White House that all of the contracts for cruisers now under construction by the three shipbuilding employers of Shearer are subject to cancellation, and that President Hoover would not hesitate to exercise that option if it is officially determined that the shipbuilders did engage in defeatist propaganda at Geneva.

The State Department was no less concerned over the whole matter, particularly in view of the visit to be made on Hoover next Friday by Ramsay MacDonald, British Premier. It was learned that the committee will suspend its hearings while MacDonald is in Washington, if it is unable to complete the inquiry by that time.

As Commander-in-Chief of the United States navy the President will insist upon an accounting from the naval officers as well as all other American officials on the delegation to Geneva as to whether they engaged in "defeatist propaganda" to cause the failure of the conference.

Secretary of the Navy Adams announced that any officer found involved in the allegations of cooperating with Shearer and "feeding" him "inside" data on the proceedings of the conference are ready to appear before the committee

Two cousins of the bridegroom, little Susan Brooks of Milton, as flower girl, and Miss Elizabeth Ballard of Morristown, N. J., served in the bridal party, which also included Miss Dorothy Dodson as maid of honor, and Miss Mary Dixon Palmer, Miss Elizabeth McClenahan, Miss Charlotte E. Brqubaer and Mrs. Robert Engle as bridesmaids. Aiden French of Springfield served as his brother's best man, and another brother, Stanley G. French of Weston, was one of the ushers. E. George Bliss of Boston, Hovey E. Slayton of Weston, Henry Tucker of New Bedford and John Frick, Jr., of Bethlehem, Daniel R. West, Jr., of Philadelphia, James Halsied of Syracuse, Perry Pease and G. Douglas Debevoise of New York completed the usher corps.

THE DATES FOR THE JUNIOR AND THE SENIOR SUPPER dances have been chosen and thus early both the debutante set and the older set may mark calendars for these delightful affairs. Mrs. James Jackson of Westwood and Boston announces the Junior supper dance dates as Friday, January 17, Friday, February 14 (St. Valentine's evening), and Friday, March 14. All the Senior supper dances will occur on Friday evenings, according to the dates announced by Ronald T. Lyman, chairman of the committee. These are December 13, January 3, January 31, February 28 and March 21. Both the Junior and Senior dances will be held at the Copley-Plaza on the appointed dates.

OF IMPORTANCE TO THIS SEASON'S BUDS IS THE BRILLIANT ball this evening at the Essex County Club at Manchester, where Mr. and Mrs. Henry Powning will formally introduce their daughter, Miss Jane Powning, already one of the most popular girls on the North Shore. Miss Powning is a lovely blonde who knows how to wear clothes, as society recognized when she modelled at the de luxe fashion show recently at Mrs. Robert S. Bradley's, at Prides Crossing. Her dance will be the largest affair given thus far and to it will come not only the 149 debs of this season with their escorts but many of last season's debutantes. Miss Powning is entertaining Miss Marleigh Kraemer, who recently made her debut at Westbury, L. I., Miss Sybil Whigham and Miss Anne Valentine of Southampton, L. I., and Miss Alice Bishop of Philadelphia at Wyndburst, her Manchester home this week-end. They will be honor guests at a dinner being given also for the ushers for the dance at the Essex Club and at a smaller dance later in the evening at the Powning house. The Pownings will live at the Ritz-Carlton this winter.

MISS LEILA STEVENS IS TO be honored this evening with one those smart dinners for which Mr. and Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin are famous. Covers for 60 will be laid in the beautiful dining room at Brackensides, the Hamilton estate of Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin, and their daughters, Misses Frances Goodwin and Betty Barrell, will be among the gay company which goes on to Miss Powning's dance afterward. Miss Stevens makes her bow at a buffet luncheon for about 200 tomorrow afternoon at Brick House, the summer home of her mother, Mrs. John Stevens, at Manchester. Miss Stevens is another deb for whom many delightful things will be done this winter, for she has a charm that has surrounded her with hosts of friends. Her house guests are Miss Joan Waldo of Brookline and Miss Isabel Potter of Topsfield.

MISS HOPE RICHARDSON made her debut at a smart tea-dance yesterday, when the home of Mrs. Augustus Hemenway, at Readville, was en fete for this happy occasion. The debutante wore a beautiful gold brocade frock that brought out her pretty complexion as she moved among her guests. The gown she brought from Paris. Miss Mary Eustis of Milton had charge of the large bevy of pourers for the afternoon tea. Assisting her at the tables were Misses Anne Houghton, Rebecca Hallowell, Mary Chase, Elizabeth Hovey, Kathryn Watson, Nancy Hallowell, Ethel Gray, Grace Minot, Helen Warren, Betty Thomas, Helena Thompson, Barbara Wendell, Priscilla Bramhall, Susan Morse, Mianne Palfrey, Barbara Warren, Mary Firth and Elizabeth Scaife. Miss Richardson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson of Readville, and recently returned from a trip abroad. Her party was another of those very smart country affairs so much in vogue with debs this season. Miss Edith Bullock was also presented yesterday at Worcester by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Bullock, of the Hotel Sheraton.

MORE DEB DATES OF thrilling interest are dotting the October calendar thick and fast. On Friday, October 4, comes the tea at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Proctor will present their daughter, Miss Barbara Proctor. On the following day Mr. and Mrs. Frederick O. Houghton of Milton will introduce their daughter, Miss Anne B. Houghton, at a tea and on that evening comes the dance at which Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson of Beacon st. and Westwood will entertain in honor of Miss Elizabeth Jackson. On Wednesday, October 9, Miss Louise Paine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Paine, makes her formal bow, and on the 10th Miss Mary Cushman will have her coming out party, given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cushman. The 11th of October is the date for a tea for Miss Mary Cleveland of Concord, who will be presented by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Cleveland. Miss Elizabeth Saltonstall's debut is begun with a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hallowell on the 12th followed by a dinner dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Saltonstall, that evening. Twenty-seven more buds will come out during the latter half of October, according to present plans.

THE LAST DANCE OF THE summer season at the Nahant Club takes place this evening, when most of those remaining at this favorite resort will gather at festive boards before the ball begins. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Greenough, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Bohlen and Miss Susan Hammond will entertain guests at dinner at the club, and many others at their homes. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turnbull are returning to town on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. F. Haven Clark in one more week, Mrs. Thomas Motley will return the middle of the month when the Charles Greenoughs and the Winthrop T. Hodges close their summer places. Those who have decided to spend the whole month of October at Nahant are Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Fay, Mrs. S. Eliot Guild, Mrs. Henry Sigourney and daughters, Misses Edith and Katherine Sigourney, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Storrow. Mrs. Herbert F. Otis and Miss Mary Otis, who leave for California the first of the year, will come to the Hotel Vendome on November 1. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Amory and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bacon will extend their Nahant visits well into November. Mrs. Curtis Guild has returned to Boston and opened her home on Marlborough st.

MRS. CHARLES STORROW, who left on a tour around the world several months ago, is expected to sail from Liverpool today for home. In the course of her travels, Mrs. Storrow has visited 50 or more countries and nearly four score of cities, having left the cruise ship at an European port and finished her trip by air, rail and motor car. Her itinerary included many places not usually seen by tourists. Mrs. A. E. Gram, sister of former Lt. Gov. Edward F. Barry, is visiting in Germany and will winter at Cannes

THE WEDDING OF MISS CECILE SHELDON and Rolf Howe Guildford will be solemnized this afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal church in Newtonville before a large audience who will extend congratulations at the reception following immediately at the rectory. The Rev. Leng, the rector, will officiate. The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Hazel Sheldon as maid of honor and another sister, Miss Grace Sheldon, will be one of her bridesmaids. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. J. Jerome Sheldon and is a sister of Mrs. Richard De Blois Boardman (Shirley Sheldon). The new home will be in Auburndale.

TOUR OF PLANE FACTORY FULL OF INTEREST

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

A slow day at the airport, one in which the cold East wind blew, and the storm in Bay State Flying Service's commodious office was out of oil, presented the proper setting for an inspection of the Moth plant at Lowell. Dick Wickes, pilot of the Seagull flying boat at Revere, furnish the transportation, and we were off to find out how the little Moths grew.

We were met at the gate by Eddie O'Toole, first commercial airplane operator on the Boston Airport, who is holding down a responsible position with the Lowell outfit, and were in turn introduced to Minton Warren, president, and Frank M. Smith, general manager. Eddie contrived passes for us to go through the factory, and after a word of explanation, turned us loose, on our own, so to speak. He also warned us not to tuck a Moth under our arm when we left.

NEAR AIRPORT

As you already know, the planes are being manufactured in the old ammunition factory, and the Lowell Airport is just outside the door.

On the north end of the building are the machines for turning out the various metal parts, such as wing fittings, pins, etc. A gang of men are busy at the lathes, each performing operations on the stock. On the same end of the building, in back of the lathes, are the jigs for fuselage assembly. The lengths of steel tubing, square for the longerons or main fuselage members, and round tubing for the cross bracings, cut exactly to size, are laid in the forms and welded together.

The fuselage is constructed in four sections, consisting of the motor mount, from the fire wall aft of the rear cockpit, then to within three feet of the rudder post and, finally, the very end of the ship. All sections are made up sides first, which are joined together in another jig, and then when everything but the motor mount is finished, the three members are welded together.

The fuselage then goes into the dipping room, where it is dipped in a bath of Lionoil, which prevents corroding. After drying, it is coated with aluminum paint. Covering comes next and then six coats of dope are applied. After painting, the fuselage is ready for the assembly line, where the undercarriage, tail surfaces, motor and wings are assembled.

BUILDING WINGS

Back on the other end of the building, across from the fuselage assembly and lathes, the wings are started. A man rouses the wing spars, for lightness; several girls are making ribs, and then, on flat tables, as long as the wings, the assembly and construction takes place.

After the wings are completely assembled, they are sanded, then go to the dipping room, and, after drying, are covered.

According to O'Toole, the propeller department is way ahead of the rest of the plant. We watched several wooden propellers being planed, props, and followed a prop through the various stages.

So far as we know, this is the only propeller making machine in New England.

The last consisting of rudder, vertical fin, elevators and horizontal stabilizer, has a department of its own. It follows the same procedure as the wings.

So, in one building, with a whole lot of material at hand, the visitor can see one complete airplane coming off the end of the line every day. In a five-day week, six planes are built. This will be stepped up to eight very shortly, and as soon as the new engines arrive from the Wright factory in Paterson, N. J., in sufficient numbers, the planes will be built at a much higher rate of speed.

The first of the American-made Gypsies was on the floor, and compared very favorably with its English brother.

The plant is open for inspection at all times, and to those who are interested in flying.

To Describe Work for Blind in Orient

Following their return recently from a tour of the Near East and the Orient in the interest of rehabilitation of the blind and the prevention of blindness, Mrs. Winifred Holt Mather, internationally known as the "Lady of the Lighthouse," and her husband, Rufus Graves Mather, are to describe some of the cases and conditions of blindness encountered on their trip, at a meeting to be held at the Perkins Institution for the Blind in Watertown today.

STAGE AND SCREEN

FATE MAY BE COCK-EYED, BUT WOW!

IN the vernacular of the show business a "natural" is one of the most joyful events that can happen in the life of a producer. A "natural" is a sure-fire hit, one that is a success from the start.

The wisest showmen, either on the stage or screen, are unable to pick a natural. Most times the scripts that read the best and look the most promising in rehearsal turn out to be the direst failures, while the natural is usually something that is produced in an indifferent manner without much promise of clicking.

On the screen the first natural was "The Birth of a Nation." "What Price Glory" was another, while the outstanding "natural" of all films seems to be "The Cock-Eyed World," now at the new B. F. Keith's.

BEYOND THE ALPS LIES QUINCY!

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

YOU may now take your "Strange Interlude" in Quincy—15 minutes from the South Station. In many ways it is fitting that this "moral monstrosity of the drama" (Mayor Nichols) should find a safe haven in the South Shore town. For Quincy, it may be remembered by those who read their country's history, has been the breeding place of the nation's most advanced thinkers—men of culture and independent thought.

THE quaint and lovely city might have been as commonplace as Revere or Chelsea except for the men it raised. We cannot imagine one of the long list of Adamses, from the second President of the United States to the present Secretary of the Navy, falling into the error of condemning any thought or project until it he amply tested. And so we must accord to Mayor McGrath any benefit of doubt which might oppress the public servant who gives tender regard to the voting capacity of his community. Make no mistake about it—they all are oppressed.

Nicholas Young

PROBABLY the best endorsement that might graciously be bestowed upon the spoken drama of Greater Boston would be a whole-hearted, honest response to the Theater Guild's plea for a square deal. The city of Quincy, it seems, has turned its resources over to the Pariahs and the sinners. That, at least, gives the underdog a chance. This was hardly possible under the Nichols-Ines-Goulston management of public morals in the big town.

SOMEHOW, Mr. E. E. Clive manages to get along mighty well with the drama's bad boys at the Copley. As we recall it, one crime after another had crossed the Copley stage for more than a year. Clive appears to thrive under it, and John M. Casey, genile censor, shows no sign of flicking the proverbial eyelash. Murder is one thing; illicit love another. Just as long as Mr. Clive keeps his mind and his plays on the cutting of throats and the robbing of poor widows he may be dead certain of scant attention from City Hall. In "The Crooked Billet" crime reaches a high stage of perfection.

BUT who cares? Certainly this play from old Lunnon is good entertainment. It shocks and it thrills; it makes gooseflesh a staple article with the bewildered auditor. Even with all its sins, we should hesitate about calling in the scrubwomen to clean it up. Mr. Clive finds so much profit in crime that one might naturally wonder whether he ever will be able to return to the peaceful conversational drama of the drawing-room and front porch. "The Crooked Billiet," now approaching its fifth week, gives its own mute approval to the skill of Mr. Clive as a picker of entertainment.

The Old Can Charm Fully as Well as the New When Beauty Sets the Stage

BESSIE LOVE

IN THE GALAXY of film luminaries that brighten "Hollywood Revue" at the Tremont, Miss Love sparkles because she just can't help being a star. She acts, sings and dances most satisfyingly.

LEONARD CEELEY AND MAYO METHOT

WHO DOESN'T ENVY young Mr. Ceeley his place beside Miss Methot? She is ever so attractive, indeed. They appear in "Great Day" at the Colonial, and both are handsome performers.

KATHRYN REECE

PRINCESS CHARMINE in Miss Reece in that wondrously well done revival of "The Black Crook" at the Shubert-Apollo. She knows her royal onions, and is graciously queenly.

Gloriously Fair

JUDITH ANDERSON

CORSET GOES BUSTLING

THE statuesque Stalacta in the "Black Crook," at the Shubert-Apollo, is played by Miss Hazel Cox, in the same costume that used to make tall, blonde beauties rich and famous. Very little is lacking but the hourglass steel ribbed corset. The troupe of Amazons who rise out of the ground at her call do not entirely achieve the hourglass figure, either. But in this second decade of the 20th century, the impossible is not too literally to be expected.

OPERA PLANS GAVE WAY TO THE STAGE

JUDITH ANDERSON, who plays in "Strange Interlude," used to be known on the stage as Frances Anderson. The late Frank Keenan, however, advised her to change her name and at the same time gave Miss Anderson her first important part, the daughter in "Peter Weston." She was born in Adelaide, South Australia, and intended to be an opera singer.

One day Winchell Smith's "Turn to the Right" company happened to be playing the same city and Miss Anderson took advantage of an opportunity to join the American troupe. The members of the cast talked so enthusiastically of the United States that they completely sold the idea of the American theater to Miss Anderson.

That was in 1917. Ten days later Miss Anderson, accompanied by her mother, was on the ocean bound for Los Angeles.

Modern and Beacon Will Change Policy Tomorrow

A new split week feature policy at the Nelsco Modern and Beacon starts tomorrow. "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," with Warner Oland, and "The Gamblers," featuring Lewis Stone, H. B. Warner and Lois Wilson, will be seen and heard the first half of the week.

Beginning Thursday, Walter Houston is starred in "The Lady Lies," an all-talking comedy drama in which Claudette Colbert and Charles Ruggles are featured. Second on the bill is the Vitaphone spectacle, "Noah's Ark," with George O'Brien and Dolores Costello.

Gets Highest Marks for Fun

HARPO MARX

HE'S A WHOLE SHOW in himself in the famous Harpo of the famous Marxian Four in "Animal Crackers" at the Shubert. This son of laugher-provokers always amuses. His fun is perennial.

SENSE OF FUN IS BIG ASSET ON STAGE

RATED as second to Will Rogers, Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge," is one of America's notable humorists. His darkey stories as exploited by him for years in books, daily newspapers and in vaudeville, has made his name a household word. Walter C. Kelly at present is giving zest to Vincent Youmans' musical prodction, "Great Day," at the Colonial.

Kelly has never had any desire to appear in a play, musical or otherwise, and it was only after constant urging on the part of Vincent Youmans that he agreed to desert his first love, vaudeville, and play the role of the auctioneer opposite Maude Eburne in this musical comedy.

He is the brother of George Kelly and a famous Philadelphia product. George Kelly wrote "The Show Off" and other dramatic hits. With Miller and Lyles, Walter Kelly enacts many of his famous stories.

Hearst's Metrotone News at Loew Houses

The initial release of the Hearst Metrotone news will take place the coming week. The first run showings of this film will be shown at Loew's State and Orpheum. Metrotone news will record in sound speech all the latest and most important world events.

Still in the Ring

"The Black Crook" at the Shubert-Apollo. (Second week.) What the gay boys of the eighties called snappy stuff. The last week.

"Animal Crackers" at the Shubert. (Second week.) Here you find the Marx Brothers giving burlesque some very fancy trimmings.

Fay Bainter in "Jealousy" at the Plymouth. (Second week.) Three acts of wrangling by two heartily distressed young persons. The last week.

"Great Day" at the Colonial. (Third week.) Because the town likes his show, Mr. Youmans is persuaded to remain for another week.

"The Crooked Billet" at the Copley. (Fifth week.) Thrilling contest between Scotland Yard and a band of crooks.

"Follow Thru" at the Majestic. (Fifth week.) In which country club comedy is greatly overshadowed by good music and spectacular dancing.

Hollywood Revue at the Tremont. (Sixth week.) You can hardly believe your own eyes and ears. Fildom's brightest stars shine brilliantly in song, dance and dialogue.

"Lovely Lady"

BETTY COMPSON

ONE OF THE stars in "Skin Deep" at the Publix Big Six is Miss Compson, fair and sweet.

SAFETY FIRST FOR STAR

BESSIE LOVE has changed her mind. She now believes in signs. And has three words of advice for salesmen and others who use automobiles for business or pleasure. The advice is this: "Don't take chances!"

Not that Miss Love, who is one of the high lights of "Hollywood Revue" at the Tremont, was taking chances herself. But, rather, because one runs enough actual risks from temperate, careful driving.

GOLD IS DUG IN TINTS OF RAINBOW

Picture..."The Gold Diggers of Broadway."
Type.....Musical Extravaganza
Stars.....A Galaxy
Theaters..Uptown and Washington St. Olympia.

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

NOT even the color-blind should miss "The Gold Diggers of Broadway." It's a sight for the eyes. It's also an earful. Too, it's a dig in the ribs—a mirthful picture in which all the corks are out of the bottles of fun; and while we are mixing metaphors, we had as well go on the say that its rainbow tints do lead to a pot of gold, and that it has a speed that sends it under the wire a winner. It is Winnie Lightner, and then some.

* * *

WHEN this same winsome Winnie shall have garnered up all the encomiums to which she is entitled, she will be at the top of the list for screen comedy hits of the year. She is a hurricane that sweeps one along, a riot in laughs. It is easy to figure her out as "stopping the show." Of all these gold-digging Twenty-Niners, she is the best. Out of a wealth of talent she looms big. Her scenes with Albert Gran are the high spots, and that leap of hers from the banquet table plump upon the fat tummy of Mr. Gran is a wow! So uproarious are the merriment and melody color in this film that it takes no statistician to figure out the box office value of the Warner Brothers latest.

Albert Gran

THE picture gives the Washington St. Olympia and Uptown another in a series of "clicks." From the point of light entertainment that deals gently with the thinking faculty, the show is the thing; the story is lost in the shuffle, snowed under by the very lavishness of the spectacle. But if Avery Hopwood's play, "The Gold Diggers," is scarcely recognizable, the public will waste no time weeping. There are too many other things happening, all highly diverting.

THE picture is purely extravaganza. It is done with a most lavish hand. The color effects are gorgeous at times; the close-ups, especially of Miss Lightner, are wellnigh perfect. We saw it at the Olympia, where the magnascopic screen was used for the ensemble, with striking result.

AFTER Miss Lightner, we accord Nancy Welford laurels; and then Ann Pennington, Gertrude Short and Lilyan Tashman. Of the male actors, Mr. Gran is an easy leader; Conway Tearle is decorative and satisfies the women in the audience. Of the singers the best are Miss Lightner and Nick Lucas; the only trouble with the latter is that he is overworked and is heard in just about two songs too many.

"THE Gold Diggers of Broadway," brimful of of fun, rushes along joyously, paints the whole wide world jazzily, and puts a tremendous "kick" in film fare.

Cuddling Up for the Clinch

JOAN BENNETT AND ROBERT MONTGOMERY

MR. MONTGOMERY MAY not be grasping by nature, but he sure can clutch opportunity in love-making. In proof, see him with Miss Bennett in "Three Live Ghosts" at Loew's State next week.

The New Plays

QUINCY THEATER (Quincy)—"Strange Interlude." Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer Prize play. Banned from Boston by Mayor Nichols, it is welcomed in Quincy by Mayor McGrath. Nine acts of stern drama starting at 5:30, with time out for dinner. In the cast are Judith Anderson, Tom Powers, Glenn Anders, Maurice McRae, Richard Barbee, Eva Condon, Ethel Westley and L. J. Burns. This is the New York cast. Special trains and adequate parking space are promised. Produced by the Theater Guild.

WILBUR—Janet Beecher in "Courage." Comedy-drama by Tom Barry. Story concerns the problems of a young mother faced with the responsibility of supporting seven children. In the supporting cast are Gene Gowing, Helen Strickland, Robert Conness, Paul Jones, Teddy Jones, Richard Ross, Alice Davenport, Frances Guinan and Pauline Roke. Staged by Priestly Morrison. Produced by Lew Cantor.

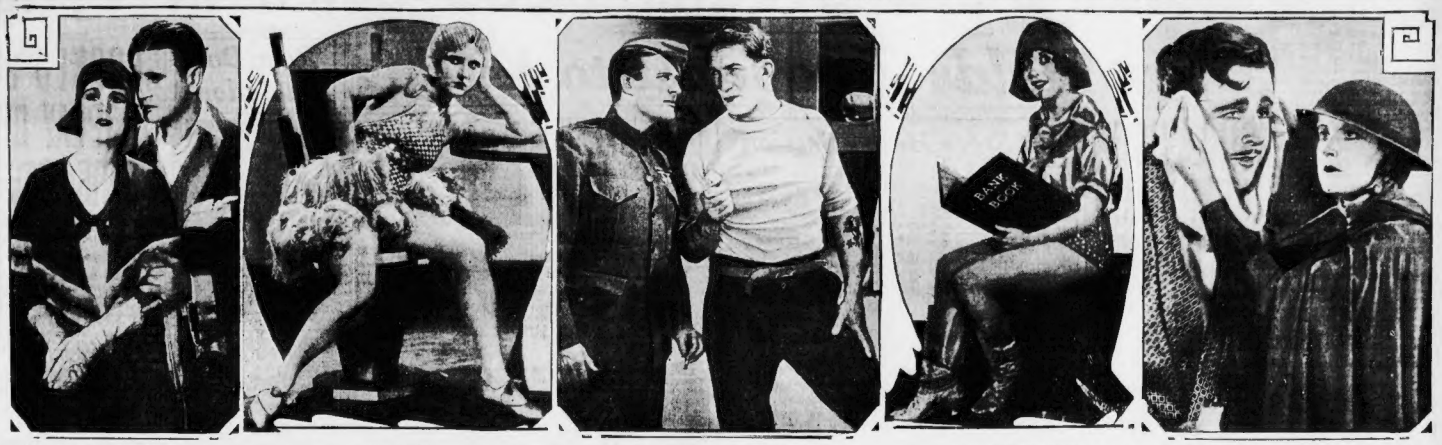
That Question Needs Study

HOLMES HERBERT AND BILLIE DOVE

WHATEVER IT BE that Mr. Herbert has asked Miss Dove is taking her time about answering. They're in "Her Private Life" at the Keith-Albee. As usual Miss Dove screens gorgeously.

STAGE AND SCREEN

When Cupid Goes to War Even the Gold Diggers Give the Lip Salute to Conquering Heroes of the Films



JUNE COLLYER AND RICHARD DIX
MISS COLLYER makes Mr. Dix take his own prescription as "The Love Doctor." They are seen and heard at the Metropolitan.

EVELYN BRENT
AS A CHORUS girl Miss Brent is curvilinearly alluring in "Broadway" at the Park. Hers is a big part and she plays it in stellar fashion. She is cast as a "sweetie."

EDMUND LOWE AND VICTOR McLAGLEN
THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN—"Sez me" and "Sez you." None others than Quirt and Flagg, alias, of course, Lowe and McLaglen, in "The Cock-Eyed World" at the New B. F. Keith's.

NANCY WELFORD
MISS WELFORD has the figure—note the bank book! She is in "The Gold Diggers of Broadway" at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia.

EDMUND BURNS AND ELEANOR BOARDMAN
YOU'D KNOW Miss Boardman even in the tin hat she wears in "She Goes to War" at Loew's Orpheum next week. Mr. Burns is having a wash.

TELEVISION REVUE IS ON PATHE PROGRAM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service
Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28—Soon the Pathe Company's Culver City studio, will be alive with music, color and excitement. "The Greenwich Village Follies" will go into production with many pretty girls in smart costumes.

BUT by no means is "The Greenwich Village Follies" to be the most important number on Pathe's next year's program. An "International Television Revue" is soon to go into production. I had thought this might be a third dimension picture, but it seems it is only a title. We are promised, however, that reproductions from the Moscow Art theaters, scenes from Berlin's famous night clubs, oriental dance numbers and amusement show places of Tokio will be featured.

"The Television Revue" is to have an international flavor as far as tongues are concerned. It will be made in French, German, Russian and Spanish, and all of Pathe's directors will have had a hand in directing it. Paul Stein, Leo Mirinski, Richard Boleslavsky and others will be called in to give expert advice. Josiah Zuro, director of music, will provide the musical numbers and all in all, it looks as if this is to be a big time production made in a big time way.

Louella O. Parsons

MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK'S son, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, has writing talent. He has been cussing around in Hollywood movies for a long time with only indifferent success. But now we hear that, aided by John Reinhardt, he has written a scenario called "Mamba" which is destined to be a ten reel, all color production, to be made for the Color Art Synchrotone Company. Furthermore, it is to star Jean Hersholt with Thelma Todd. Alan Hale is also in the cast and they are trying to get Lewis Stone to join the merry throng.

TIME was when any player making a "short" would say in disgust "Yes, I am busy. But it's only a 'short.'" Times have changed and the abbreviated talkies are coming into their own. They are important because many of them are used in place of the flesh and blood prologue.

Jean Bennett is about to be starred in "The Irish Rhapsody," a short reeler described as a musical picture of the Irish patriots' fight for freedom. Hugo Riesenfeld will direct her for United Artists, and Donald Novis has been chosen to play opposite her. Victor Herbert's music will be one of the dominating notes (no pun intended.)

Kreisler Program

The program for the recital by Fritz Kreisler in Symphony Hall, a week from tomorrow afternoon, is: Sonata in A minor by Nicoli Pasquali; Chaconne, for violin alone, by Bach, Concerto No. 3 in B minor, by Saint-Saens; Romance in F major, by Beethoven; and Fantasy on Russian Themes, by Rimsky-Korsakov.

SYMPHONY TO BEGIN WORK

SERGE KOUSSEVITZKY will assemble the Boston Symphony Orchestra for rehearsal next week in preparation for the opening of its 49th season on Friday, October 11th.

New pieces which will be given their first American presentation in the course of the season are a suite from Prokofieff's ballet, "L'Enfant Prodigue," a Symphony by Aaron Copland, and a new piece by Werner Josten.

GREATER BOSTON NEWS EVENTS

BAUER BANS STOCKINGLESS GIRLS IN LYNN

Court Holds Two in Au to Killing

By FRED TOYE

ONE OF THE OLDEST HUman freaks of our time is the persistency of rumor. Like wildfire, reports spread that Tommy Loughran, defeated opponent of Jack Sharkey had died. Reporters found the boxer calmly eating his breakfast in his room. But the entire nation rang for hours with the supposed authentic news of his passing out.

Offices of the newspapers were flooded with telephone calls from bankers, brokers, manufacturers, officials and individuals in all walks of life. So circumstantial was the story that the stock tickers carried it. For one of the few times in newspaper history, papers were obliged to carry conspicuous denials of a story which they had never printed.

EVERY SO OFTEN A FAKE or baseless story of this sort breaks. Its origin is hidden in mystery. An idle word, a guess or a hope is enough. The entire world believed the story of the Cossacks advancing through England to the battle-front in France.

In Paris I met countless persons who solemnly stated that they had seen German Hussars within the city walls shortly before the first battle of the Marne. In the excitement of the time, they believed that they had seen them.

Recently the United States had the same sort of imaginary news of Col. Lindbergh's supposed death.

THE SPIKING of the Loughran rumor gave the wise-cracking sport followers a chance to have their say.

"Sharkey couldn't hit Loughran hard enough to kill him," was one sarcastic comment which came floating to my ears.

"The were both dead when they entered the ring," was another.

BOSTON has more old ladies to the square mile than any city in the world. I don't mean old ladies in public office and such. Get me right. I mean nice old grandmas who have passed the frumpy dowager age. Who have a keen, sparkling outlook on life. Girls of 60 and upwards.

Maybe you think they aren't right up to the minute. I know half a dozen who manage their own affairs with all the assurance and shrewdness of the most astute Yankee business man.

These old ladies enjoy life. The past holds bright and colorful scenes. The present is an amusing panorama. Their greatest grief is the growing rudeness of our young people of 20 to 70.

Nowadays, young people never feel the slightest obligation to acknowledge an invitation. Formal courtesy is unknown.

A woman who mails out four or five hundred invitations to a coming-out party or to a dance for her granddaughter, never knows whether to expect six or six hundred. Usually they all come pilling in at the last minute, oblivious to the household problems of catering and such.

PUBLIC ENTHUSIASMS run riot in all directions these days. Just now we're rather bookish. Serious courses containing all the world's store of science, or of history, or of philosophy are leaving fads. Lately the flair has been for detective and mystery thrillers.

Watch for a sudden switch. Who can guess the coming rage? I predict that old friend Rabelais will be the next model for aspiring writers of first sellers for cellar reading.

We've gone through the throes of Freudism, behaviorism, biography, bootlegger, gangsterism and novelized family history. We're due for an overnight change.

Today, the most talked-of and least written-about book is a skinny bit of hilarious nonsense, devoted entirely to barnyard humor. In spite of its monumental sales, for weeks past, our bright young minds have so far not bethought themselves of following the same line.

HARVARD is stirred up over the customs ban on importations of Rabelais works in unexpurgated French text. This, however, has nothing to do with the circulation of the same text printed on American presses, of which there is abundant supply.

The study of the doings of Gargantua, Pantagruel and their associated characters is for the purpose of observing Rabelais' literary style. The subject matter is given slight attention in the Harvard French courses.

Modern French writers occasionally forsake the smart sophistication of typical Gallic wit and try their hand at broad humor of the Rabelais type. Even that talented Academician, Pierre Louys, has had his moments of literary belching. At times they fume out in the midst of his most inspired lyrical flights.

GIRL VICTIM NEAR DEATH IN CHELSEA

East Boston and North End Men Accused in "Speed" Car Hit-and-Run Case

Two alleged auto speeders, said to have been responsible for the death of Herman Cassier of Webster st., Chelsea, and serious injury to a girl companion, Miss Virginia Hamilton of Library st., Chelsea, were arraigned in Chelsea court today and held for a hearing next month.

Louis W. D'India of Sumner st., East Boston, was held in $1000 on a charge of manslaughter; $500 for operating so as to endanger public safety and $200 for leaving the scene of an accident.

Meanwhile, attaches at Chelsea Memorial Hospital hold out little hope for the recovery of Miss Hamilton.

JUDGE IGNORES POLICE PLEA

In the face of a police request that the defendant be dismissed for lack of evidence, Judge Thomas H. Dowd of municipal court today held 19-year-old John T. Susan of Dorchester in $2000 for appearance before the Grand Jury on a charge of misappropriation of an automobile.

According to the testimony of the arresting officer, Susan drove away from a Back Bay hotel in a car owned by a New York florist. Chased by police, the youth jumped out of the machine and fled. He was captured in a nearby alley.

Today was the defendant's fourth appearance in court. Three times previously prosecuting officers asked that the charge be dropped, since the owner of the "borrowed" car did not wish to appear against the alleged culprit.

Judge Dowd refused to order a dismissal. The only government witnesses were the two officers who captured Susan. They said that the boy told them he had been sent to get a machine at the hotel in question and had picked the wrong car.

Columbus Day Parade Program

The route of the Columbus Day parade in Revere, a feature of an elaborate program under the auspices of the Italian Central Committee of Revere, has been changed to conform with the new "White Way" on Broadway, Alexander J. Drinkwater will be chief marshal, with Louis Glixman and Parker J. Brown as assistants.

Dominic Di Stefani is general chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration.

St. Alphonsus Assn. to Hold Whist Party

St. Alphonsus Association will conduct a benefit bridge and whist party for the baseball team in the clubrooms, Smith st., Roxbury, on Monday evening.

Invents Screen for Autoist Against Stinging Bees

Moved by sympathy for auto drivers who are stung by bees and pestered by mosquitoes, George A. Dixon, felt dyer at a Medway mill, has turned inventor.

He has devised and patented an adjustable screen that he says will make any motor car, large or small, bug proof on a minute's notice.

Protection against accidents, caused by flies in the operator's eye or insect stings on face or hands, is the principal purpose of the "safety screen."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a stitchcrafts apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

AUTO REGISTRY SLIPS CHANGED

New automobile registration blanks for 1930, which will be placed in the mails next week, will ask more detailed information about the machines. The applicant must tell where he "garages" his car, on account of excise tax and insurance questions.

George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, points out that low numbers often may be secured by early application.

In a seven-page statement issued today, the registrar announces also that "registration over the counter at the pier and the various branches of the registry, will begin Monday, November 4."

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 68

(Courtesy Mass. Historical Society)

YESTERDAY'S picture in this series of scenes of Old Boston showed a fashionable party of the year 1776. Today we see a similar gathering in the year 1855. Fashions changed remarkably in the intervening four-score years. Hair powder went out and mustachios came in. Trousers replaced knee breeches. Dress of the women, however, shows comparatively little change, but the style of their hair appears to be the "Jenny Lind." While these parties of the period were not of the "whoopee" manner of today, they were, nevertheless, gay and extravagant enough to alarm the [illegible]. Watch for more of these interesting pictures daily in the Boston

The fire started in the G. S. Sprague hardware store on the first floor at 132 Federal st, and spread quickly to the upper floors. The firemen were given a stiff battle in the Sprague store as several gallons of varnishes and paints caught fire.

N. E. Milk Producers' 9-Cent Rate Stands

The sales committee of the New England Milk Producers' Association announced that the nine cent price for Boston milk will continue into October.

This is the price which the farmers of New England have received for milk since July 15, 1928, with the exception of the month of June, 1929, when their price was eight cents per quart.

POSES AS "DOC" TO BUY RUM

After several unsuccessful attempts to purchase liquor at a tenement house on Northampton st., South End, Patrolman P. J. Grant of the Police Headquarters liquor squad went there, accompanied by a woman informer, posing as a doctor and nurse, respectively.

They claim to have succeeded in buying one pint of alleged liquor, and Joseph Forte, 41, of East Lenox st., was arrested charged with making the sale. He will appear in the Municipal court today.

Before the policeman and the woman informer revealed their identity, they were asked to look at a child in the house who was ill. It was while examining the child that arrangements for the purchase of liquor were made. Grant wore the white coat of a physician.

Police Hunt Hit-Run Driver; Cottage Is "Victim"

Police were hunting a hit-and-run driver in Revere today—but the victim of the crash was only a summer cottage on North Shore rd., near Centennial ave.

The automobile got out of control, skidded across a sidewalk, and flattened its front end against the cottage door.

According to witnesses of the accident, a man and a girl jumped out of the wrecked car and fled. The machine, police said, was registered to Miss Nellie Peterson of Commercial st., Lynn, who said it had been stolen.

SHOCKED BY DISPLAY OF BARE LEGS

Orders Police to Shoo Them Off the Street; Won't Even Let Them Go to School

Declaring that girls of 12 years or over, appearing in public without stockings, are following a vogue which is "immodest, indecent and immoral," Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn today ordered police to warn—or, if need be, arrest —all young women found on the streets exposing bare legs from the ankle to the knee."

Officers were instructed by the Mayor to stop the stockingless girls, take their names, and send them home to cover their shins. Rebellious misses, refusing to identify themselves, must be taken into custody and booked on a charge of indecent exposure, according to the Bauer ukase.

BAN ON SCHOOL GIRLS.

The police campaign against bare legs was commended by the mayor in a letter to Chief Thomas M. Burchen.

At the same time, the mayor wrote today to the principals of Lynn's two high schools and one junior high school. He instructed the school heads to refuse stockingless girls admission to classes. He declared himself acting for the public welfare in his capacity as "head of the law and order department" of the city.

Mayor Bauer's ban on bare-legged school pupils included not only those of 12 years or over, but those of "adult appearance."

MAYOR IS SHOCKED

The mayor's crusade followed an encounter which he had with a group of high school girls in front of his office. He observed that several of the young women were wearing only ankle socks, letting a coat of tan suffice for further leg covering.

The mayor took a "good look," he said today, and was "inexpressibly shocked and revolted."

"There's nothing beautiful about the fad," he declared. "It's only the girls with beefy legs who try to show them off that way."

GARRETT SEEKS INJURY REPORT

Patrolman Oliver B. Garrett today visited police headquarters by order of Capt. James McDevitt of Joy st. station to obtain a report of an accident in which Garrett was injured on August 2, 1927. He seeks to be pensioned because of the injuries.

Garrett talked with his former superior, Capt. George W. Patterson, who tried to see Police Commissioner Hultman. But he was half of the deposed head of the liquor squad. The commissioner, however, was too busy to see anyone.

Garrett then telephoned Capt. McDevitt. It was said that he was tired of "waiting around all day" and left the building.

Dedham Woman Crushed by Truck

Mrs. Anna S. Nordstrom, 62, of East st., Dedham, was instantly killed today when an auto truck struck her as she was crossing Washington st., Dedham, near Memorial Park. A wheel passed over her head, crushing her skull.

The truck, loaded with several tons of grapes, was driven by Guiseppi Cesaroni of Woonsocket, R. I. He was held on a charge of manslaughter. Witnesses said that Mrs. Nordstrom had stepped out of an automobile, occupied by her husband and friends.

Another couple that went to Providence and filed intentions is Harold S. Sandberg, 25, pharmacist, of Richard rd., East Weymouth, and Miss Christine Vance, nurse, Park drive, Brookline. Neither was at home today.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

Goldman Loses to Win
Buckley Misses K. O.
Gloves Fitted Well
Sharkey Loves His Kids

Jack Conway

"I WAS sitting with Jack Sharkey in the lobby of the Forrest Hotel on the day of the Loughran bout when Bobby Goldman came in," said Mr. Boston. "Goldman is manager of Al Mello and has always been one of Sharkey's chief rooters.

"Goldman has usually backed his judgment with cash, but has always wagered the most money when things didn't go so well with the Sharkey offensive.

"'Betting on the Loughran bout?' I asked Goldman.

"'I haven't decided what I'll do yet,' replied Bobby.

"'Don't bet on me, as I think you're my jinx,' pleaded Sharkey.

"'Want me to bet on the other guy?' asked Goldman.

"'Yes, bet on Loughran,' chirped Sharkey. 'Then I'm sure to win. You'll shift the jinx.'

"'Then I'll put $100 on Tommy,' said Goldman.

"'And I'll pay you $100 if you lose,' shot back Sharkey.

"Goldman then placed $100 on Loughran and, of course, Sharkey chilled the Philadelphian. And it only cost $100 to chase the Goldman jinx right into the Loughran camp.

"SHARKEY also collected a bet of his own a few more seconds after Referee Lou Magnolia declared him the winner over Loughran.

"This wager was made at Orangeburg.

"'I'm going to knock Loughran out,' said Sharkey, following a training session. 'The old right duke will perform the trick.'

"Sharkey then kissed his right fist and pretended he was about to deliver a punch.

"'If you stiffen Loughran, I'll hold my chin out for you and let you take a clear shot at it,' said Johnny Buckley.

"'Do you really mean that, you Irishman?' asked Sharkey.

"'I'll be in the corner waiting for your sock,' asserted Buckley. 'And I hope you collect.'

"When declared the winner over Loughran, Sharkey dashed over to his own corner. Buckley had just stepped into the ring in a rather jubilant mood.

"Sharkey barraged with some left and right hand socks to the body in playful fashion and then intentionally missed a wild right hand swing for the chin.

"'Guess it's enough to knock out one fellow a night,' he said good-naturedly.

"A few minutes later in the dressing room Sharkey and Buckley had their arms around each other's necks. A great winning combination in this Sharkey-Buckley team.

"I RODE downtown in a taxi with Sharkey following the weighing in ceremonies at the Yankee Stadium.

"The big fellow relaxed completely after passing the physical examination. Suddenly he sat forward and closed his right fist.

"'How I'd like to pin this fist on Loughran's chin early in the fight and knock him out,' said Sharkey.

"And Jack did.

"WHEN the six-ounce gloves were fitted on Sharkey before the bout, he closed his fists.

"'I never had a pair of gloves which fitted me so well,' he said. 'My hands feel like iron and I'm aching to get a crack at Loughran.'

"The fists of iron went into action a few minutes later. And they hit their mark.

"AFTER the bout Sharkey wanted to start over the road for Boston with Mrs. Sharkey. He was anxious to see his three youngsters from whom he had been separated for more than three weeks on account of the training period.

"Jack was finally persuaded to rest for the night and start home the next day. A great family man is this two-fisted warrior who is destined to become heavyweight champion of the world."

U. S. RECORDS REJECTED

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Several world swimming records submitted by the Amateur Athletic Union of America were rejected at a meeting of the Bureau of the International Swimming Federation today on the ground that they were not submitted within the prescribed period of three months from the time they were made.

It is understood all these records were made last year. Thus far the authorities have not made public what records are involved.

J. T. Taylor of the United States recommended certain alterations of its rules regarding the breast stroke, but these were not agreed to.

It was decided there would be no curtailment of swimming programs at future olympic games. Also it was decided to recommend that the swimming programs at the next Olympics in Los Angeles should take place from August 1 to August 8 1932.

Moving pictures of the Sharkey-Loughran and Maloney-Gagnon bouts will be shown at the Old Howard and Bowdin Sq. theaters all next week.

HEENEY IS DONE WITH RING

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Tom Heeney, brawny New Zealand blacksmith, is through with the prize ring.

Dissatisfied with his showing against George Hoffman, young New York heavyweight, in a preliminary bout on the Loughran-Sharkey card Thursday night, "Honest Tom" has decided that he has had enough of the game. Heeney, recently stopped by Victorio Campolo, said before his fight with Hoffman that if he failed to knock out the youngster he would retire. As it turned out he was hard pressed to eke out an extremely unpopular decision.

Heeney has been decidedly on the down grade ever since his crushing defeat by Gene Tunney in the heavyweight champion's last bout a year ago.

HELEN HICKS IS ONE UP

Lancaster, Ont., Sept. 28 (AP)—Miss Helen Hicks, the young Hewlett, N. Y., golfing star, who yesterday eliminated Miss Glenna Collett, was one up at the end of the first nine holes of her final round match with Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., today for the Canadian women's open golf championship.

Miss Quier jumped into the lead at the start by winning the second hole when Miss Hicks trapped her second and took three putts. Helen of Hewlett forged ahead before they reached the turn, however, winning the sixth and seventh. The other six holes of the first nine were halved in par.

HORWEEN AT DARTMOUTH BATTLE

After watching the Harvard first team go through its last scrimmage of the week in which the regulars took the scrubs for a 78—29 score, Head Coach Arnold Horween boarded a north-bound train and arrived in Dartmouth today.

He was accompanied by Duke Dunn, line coach of the Crimson team, and several of his assisting mentors. The purpose of the visit to Hanover was to size up the 1929 Indian grid machine.

At the same time that the head coach headed north, Eddie Casey, backfield coach of the Crimson, left for West Point. Casey is an interested spectator of the Cadets-Boston University game. He brought some assisting backfield teachers with him and hopes to fathom the Army football magic.

The secret of Harvard's remarkable showing in recent scrimmages is due in part to the great success they are having with the laterals and the forward passes. It is also due to the fact that Horween has about a dozen eligible backs who are battling one another for the four first team positions.

Yale Holds Secret Practice in Bowl

New Haven, Sept. 28—Albie Booth was replaced by Charles Snead at left halfback in a 35-minute secret practice in the bowl in which the Yale regulars made three touchdowns and defeated the scrubs, 21 to 0. The gray squad was never dangerous.

B. U. Opens Season With West Point

BOSTON UNIVERSITY will provide the opposition for coach "Biff" Jones' West Point eleven at the latter's home gridiron on the banks of the Hudson this afternoon in the opening game of the season for both teams.

A typical Army eleven headed by Capt. Christian "Red" Cagle, one of the best halfbacks in the country, will line up against a younger less experienced team from Boston but one which has 11 fighters and a better than average backfield and the determination to make the best showing of any previous B. U. aggregation which has stacked up against Uncle Sam's finest.

Cagle and Murrell are the big guns in the Army lineup and if the Terriers manage to keep these two stars in check the outcome of this afternoon's clash is bound to be close. However, Cagle and Murrell have been watched closely by every Army opponent for the past three years and in that time Stanford was the only team successful in holding them in check so it looks as if B. U. will have its troubles.

Roxbury Latin and Rivers Play Tie

Roxbury Latin football team opened its schedule at West Roxbury by playing a scoreless tie with Rivers school of Brookline.

The Latin outfit played an overhead game and some remarkable passing was seen, although none resulted in a score.

Both teams appeared evenly matched in offensive power, with the lines playing brilliantly on defense.

Pawtucket Eleven Clashes With Woodsies Today

FINE SOCCER TILT LISTED AT BROOKLINE FIELD BETWEEN OLD RIVALS

THE Pawtucket eleven with Sam Kennedy, Findlay Kerr, Tommy Martyn, Bob Perry, Farey Barlow and Johnny Harvie, will oppose the Woodsies today in an American League soccer contest at Brookline Field.

The tilt should more than please the fans due to the existing rivalry between the clubs, and as it is the first meeting between the pair this season, a big crowd will be on deck at the kick-off.

The Woodsies, confronted by the poor display of their attack during the past four games, will revise the attack. Rabbit O'Hara will go into inside left position with Fleming dropping back. Sunderland may be used at inside right and Nilsen at center, a move that should add considerable punch to the line.

The defence of the locals is safe in the hands of Harper, McGill and McArthur and if the front line can notch a couple of goals, a victory should be theirs.

Pawtucket, on paper, is a first-class aggregation, but since the start of the campaign the combination has failed to function with the result that they have lost half of the 10 games played.

The attack of the Rhode Island team, comprised of Harvie, Barlow, Kennedy, McKecknie and Walker, is rated much higher than the Hub front line. Yet they have only registered 17 goals in 11 contests, while the front line of the Woodsies have 23 goals in 13 games.

The opposing defenses have the best records of any of the clubs in the league, with the locals having a slight advantage over their opponents. The Hub defense has lost 13 goals in 13 contests to 18 for Pawtucket in 11 matches.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Throughout your golfing you will hear a great deal about the straight left arm. You will be told to keep it absolutely straight and in trying to do that, you will note the arm becomes like a ramrod which makes your action awkward and restrained. Then you let down on it a bit and again you hear the caution to keep the left arm straight. How straight becomes something of a question with you. Actually, the left arm is straight and yet not straight. At the top it should be an easy curve, the elbow not broken yet not stiffly straight. When you walk your legs are straight, and the arms hang straight, in walking, you wouldn't think of walking stiff-legged. Yet golfers try to get a straight left arm by stiff-arming, which is wrong. When you make the arm stiff it becomes rigid and that makes your forward swing jerky and the delivery of the clubhead to the ball more of a bat than a stroke. Let your arm act naturally, restraining it only from breaking at the elbow at the top of the back swing.

FOOTBALL IS IN FULL SWING

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—The open season for raccoon coats and yellow carnations was officially ushered in today.

For from Maine's rock-bound coast to California's sunny slopes thousands of athletes from some hundred colleges began their annual dying for dear old whoosis.

Although a sprinkling of games were played last Saturday, today marks the real beginning of the 1929 gridiron year.

In the East practically all schools save the members of the one-time big three and Lafayette were to get under way. Army, Navy, N. Y. U., Columbia, Dartmouth, Penn, Brown and Syracuse were to engage in games that without exception are set-ups.

Four members of the Midwest's big ten, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana, get off today in the hunt for the conference title.

In the South, Georgia Tech and Kentucky are the only larger schools that will delay their opening until next week.

On the Pacific Coast all teams will be in action, two outfits having begun their season last week, and these Pacific Coast games provide the only two games of the day where the outcome is more than doubtful.

Stanford plays the Olympic Club, a powerful organization. California may find Santa Clara a little too much for an opening kick.

Syracuse followers will have to wait until near midnight for news of a victory, for that school and Hobart will play at night under floodlights.

Pirates Will Keep Paul Waner

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 28 (AP)—Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, issued a statement today denying reports that Paul Waner is to be traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Sunny Jim Bottomley, Card first baseman. Dreyfuss said no deal involving Waner was contemplated.

Colby Ready for Wildcats Today

Waterville, Sept. 28—A light signal drill and a long blackboard talk was the final preparation which the Colby football squad had in preparation for the season's opener with University of New Hampshire, which will be played on the Colby field today.

"Snub" Pollard, veteran center, who is confined to his bed with the flu, will be the only first-string player who will be absent from the line-up. His place will be filled by Bill Crabtree of Dover.

Noble & Greenough Beats Dedham, 6-0

Noble and Greenough scored its first victory in seven years over Dedham high, 6 to 0.

The high school team was outweighed and lacked experienced material but put up a good game.

The winning Noble score came in the first quarter when Cutler picked Kidder's forward pass out of the air from the 15-yard line.

Dartmouth Opens With Norwich

By BILL GRIMES

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 28—Dartmouth opens its season against Norwich University today at Memorial Field.

Dartmouth is playing its first game under Head Coach Jack Cannell and is anxious to get off to a flying start. The big Green has been working out for three weeks but the team is far from top form.

With the exceptions of Eddie O'Connor and Paul Crehan Dartmouth will be at top strength. O'Connor is out of the opening game with a bad shoulder while Crehan has not rounded into shape and Charlie Nims will be at right guard in place of the Roxbury boy. Yudickey will take O'Connor's position at right end.

Coach Cannell will start Al Masters at quarter with Len Clark, Newton Shep Wolff and Eddie Sutton in the backfield. Al Marsters, who was one of the sensations of the 1927 season, is making his debut as a field general. Much of the Big Green's offense is build around Masters and the Arlington boy will have a real opportunity to feature today.

In Clark, Wolff and Sutton, Dartmouth has a well balanced trio of ball carriers.

SOX RESUME SERIES WITH ATHLETICS

Games today and tomorrow with the champion Philadelphia Athletics at Braves Field will bring to an end the Red Sox 1929 home campaign. After the Sabbath contest, the natives will vacation until a week from today, when they will open their final series, a two-game affair with the Senators in Washington.

The Braves will inter the local season in title with Brooklyn next Thursday and Saturday and the Giants a week from tomorrow.

There should be a good crowd at the Wigwam both today and tomorrow even though the games are meaningless. The fans are more than pleased over the showing of the Sox for the past six weeks and want to bid them a real farewell. They also want to see in action the team that will represent the American League in the World Series.

The champions are a great ball club. There's not a weak spot in the whole lineup. Just now, they are far too confident for their own good. They all have a superiority complex that is seriously hurting their game.

The best thing that could happen to the team would be for the Sox to give it one or two good lickings. That would make the Macks realize that they are not invincible and make them mighty dangerous in the series.

TUFTS FROSH PLAY ANDOVER

The Tufts freshmen, with less than a week and a half of practice behind them, open the season against Andover on the latter's home field.

The Jumbo yearlings seem a slight favorite with the imposing array of scholastic talent they have in the lineup but will be handicapped by a lack of preparation.

The Tufts team will start the game with Howe at center, Coxon and Corcoran at guard, Brunton and Archibald at the tackle posts and Balkus and Mann at end. The backfield will start with Uanna, Clayman, Hymanson and Clark.

Chi Fans Won't Back Up Cubs With Money

Chicago, Sept. 28 (INS)—With all the enthusiasm Cubs fans are showing for the Chicago team in the coming World Series, they are expressing very little of it with cold cash.

That was disclosed today with the report of $200,000 seat buys by Philadelphia Athletics fans in the East to bet against the Cubs at even money.

Attached to the wad of money was he message, "No takers."

Dilboy Eleven in Opener Tomorrow

Several thousand fans are expected to attend the opening of suburban Boston's semipro football season tomorrow afternoon, at Dilboy Field, Somerville, when the Dilboy eleven clashes with the strong Roche Club of Everett.

Lyons Playing Host on Opening Night

Starting tonight at the American House Ralhskeller, Jerry Lyons, manager, will present as host to see that all attending the grand opening will enjoy themselves to the utmost. Several snappy vaudeville acts will make the evening a big one. "Biff" Dooley's music, featuring "Cy" Zinn, late of the George M. Cohan's shows, will furnish the music. Theatrical night will be held every Wednesday, and inasmuch as the American House Ralhskeller is a big favorite with theatrical folks, many of the stars from leading shows will attend.

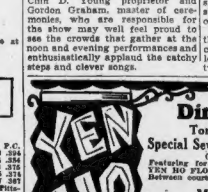
Special Program at Palais D'or Tonight

Friday night marked the first Balloon Night of the season at the Palais D'or restaurant, 281 Huntington ave, and manager Steve Hung said that it met with such success that he will continue to run this feature night during the rest of the season.

Many reservations are being made for parties after the Boston College football game tonight and Jimmie Gallagher in person and his orchestra has selected the best numbers of the season to be featured tonight.

Russell on Job at Symphony Cafe

Howard Russell continues to be a success at the Symphony restaurant, 235 Huntington ave, and is well supported by Perley Stevens and his famous recording orchestra. Chin D. Young proprietor and Gordon Graham, master of ceremonies, who are responsible for the show may well feel proud to see the crowds that gather at the noon and evening entertainments and enthusiastically applaud the catchy steps and clever songs.



Duck Tent Big Hit With Hub Patrons

Morey Pearl's Duck Tent has proven popular with Boston's dine and dance patrons. The Duck Tent, situated in Weymouth on the Nantasket road, is but a 22-minute drive from Boston. Plenty of parking space is available. Dancing every night and no cover charge. Moderate prices and anything from a sandwich to a full course dinner will be served.

Novel Songs at Silver Slipper III

Nothing new under the sun? Not so. Comes a change in the orchestra at the Silver Slipper III, Arlington st. There will be no new music, new faces, new everything, for Henry "Duke" Davis and his novelty orchestra is going to entertain, starting Monday night.

Henry says he has several songs on which the ink has not dried, so to speak, and others that offer every indication of popularity have been worked into snappy numbers of song and dance.

Stella D'Italia Makes Big Hit

There is no use denying that the new and magnificent Stella D'Italia, a late addition to Boston's high class restaurants, has made a decided impression with those who have already visited it. The Stella offers a noonday luncheon from 11:30 to 2:30 and the dinner dance takes place between 6:30 and 8 without cover charge. The supper dance for those who attend the theater is held from 9 until 1 in the morning. There is also entertainment furnished each week at this new and attractive restaurant.

New Dance Music at Cocoanut Grove

Jacques Renard, master musician, of the Cocoanut Grove Recording Orchestra, is offering a new phase of dance music to his legion of admirers who frequent this popular resort. This innovation, which has met with decided favor since the reopening of the place, strikes a high note in a softer tone of dance music.

Mickey Alpert, of course, is still the highlight of the Grove, and has complete supervision of the excellent floor shows that are offered twice nightly.

FINE SCHOOLBOY BATTLES SCHEDULED; BROCKTON TO PLAY MEDFORD

FOR the first time since 1922, a Malden high school football team will play a Newton high team on the gridiron at Claflin Field, Newtonville, today. The rivalry between these two schools was always intense back in the days when Malden was a member of the Suburban League, but a break in athletic relations ensued.

Now the two teams are to meet again. Malden has a fine line and it's backfield is fast. Newton is a green team and has a light line. Ordinarily, Malden would be picked to win, but it seems that Newton has always been a jinx to Malden football teams. In the years when Newton could not make any kind of a creditable showing against Suburban League foes, the home fans had a chance to celebrate a victory whenever Malden was played.

A Red Terror sweeps down from Brockton, confident of taking Medford's measure. Brockton has the speed and the veterans and is heavily favored to win. Medford's backfield of Spellman, Nicholson, Maglione, and Jas Janian is very good. Brockton's is better with Ratson, Pileski, La Franchise, and Heath.

Pileski is one of the best punters in scholastic circles and is an all round star besides. Ratson saw experience last year. Spellman's individual brilliance may keep Brockton in check for a time, but the odds are too great.

Cambridge Latin will give Salem a tough afternoon. The Cantabs are not as weak as they seem to be. Coach MacDonald knows that he can rely on Cohen, at right end, and La Ronde Lakakas and Dugan in the backfield are good. Marlio can step places with the ball, too.

Salem has a stellar fullback in Lindsey. Rybicki, at quarter, has not shown much in the football line as yet. Passemey and Grasyk make the guard berths impassable for ball-toting individuals. It's Salem's game.

Stoneham's line will average 135 pounds in today's match with and at Winchester. There seems to be optimism as to the result in Stoneham, for the punting of Addigan and the smart plotting of Quarterback Marston are seen as threats to Winchester's hopes. Winchester usually fields a strong team so that prediction as to the probable winner is a bit risky.

Warwick high of Rhode Island is too light a team to cause Everett any worry. Day, Pince, Thomas and Spink are in the backfield for Warwick, but this quartet is overshadowed by Everett's smart four composed of McLean, Brickley, Taylor and Del Isola. Brickley's punting is very good and Del Isola can be depended upon to hit that line in the orthodox manner.

Coach Dickerman of Somerville is worrying about his foe, Cranston high of Auburn, R. I. The invaders have an extremely heavy line and a light, fast backfield. Somerville is hampered by the loss of Quarterback Francis Escott, whose knee is not all that it should be.

Martin and Vitello are expected to go well for Somerville. Don Wells, at right halfback, will look unfamiliar at his new post. He worked signals last season. Cranston, a team which was a runner-up for the Rhode Island state title last year, is much too heavy for Somerville and is expected to win.

Lynn English is playing at Nashua, N. H. today with five veterans missing. Injured have removed Capt. Gould, halfback, Hussey, another halfback, Kassa, a tackle, Del Isola, guard, and Blackson, center, from the scene of action. Nashua has an experienced backfield in Bilokitas, Narunas, Tebbetts, and Tamelevich. Nashua by a considerable margin.

Brookline high has a very heavy squad and a smart broken-field runner in Bernard Hootstein. Larkin and Woodward are other backfield luminaries. Woodward's punting is dependable. Although Lynn Classical has lost it's great player, Lorenzo Johnson, Classical is seen as a dark-horse today.

Rindge Tech will open it's grid season at Revere. A great day for Rindge, with a chance to use plenty of subs. Revere has a fairly good team this year, but handicaps such as the lack of a home field and other annoyances have hampered the work of the Amusement City outfit.

and two veterans in its backfield Johnson, Farmer, Pelkey and Lane figure on making tours of varying length, all of them ending behind Waltham's goal lines. The Watch City backfield works smoothly. Pendergast, Gerrie and Mieia saw action last fall. Stan Krol, a transfer from Newmarket, N. H., is at one of the halfback stations. Waltham is favored to win. It will.

Lawrence will use Worcester Commerce as a means of testing it's own gridiron strength at Lawrence. Worcester Commerce lost to Peabody last Saturday by a 19 to 0 score. Gill s and Linehan look good in Lawrence's backfield. A victory for Lawrence would be no surprise.

Arlington dusts off the stands to pen with Concord. Reading from left to end to fullback, here's how Concord will line up: Mars, Denton, Scherrell, Todd, Beach, Stagerity, Heyliger, Prescott, Jagling, Cunningham and McGrath. The line averages 160 pounds and the backfield is even heavier. Cunningham is a well known broken-field fancier. Arlington has but three veterans. Figure out the result on way to manie.

The Taunton team which visits Norwood today lost everything but hope this season, but Dave Mullen is the Taunton coach and that makes a difference. The 11 youths who sported on the green for Taunton last year have departed, but the new material is big and otherwise making themselves nuisances. He went to the sheriff's office, got a sawed-off shotgun and shot a bulldog that lay as if he were dead as a stone. The next day he saw the dog trotting about the square, as if nothing had happened. It looks like the Bull played 'possum on the nightwatch.

Mr. Evilsizer says the stray dogs, last race about the courthouse yard and the squares are doing the private lodge about the courtyard more damage than all the kids that crawl through the wire.

Nightwatch Evilsizer concluded to kill some dogs, Saturday evening. A bunch of the canines that frequent the square had got into the habit of following him, and otherwise making themselves nuisances. Canzoneri Shows Title Stuff in Win

Chicago, Sept. 28 (INS)—Tony Canzoneri, New York lightweight, today had established himself as one of the foremost contenders for the crown now won by Sammy Mandell following his technical knockout over Eddie Mack of Denver last night.

Referee Collins stopped the bout in the eighth round when Mack was unable to get up after being floored. The end came after Canzoneri had battered the Denver lad with a furious rights and lefts to the head.

LOUGHRAN ASKS RETURN GO

New York, Sept. 28—Tommy Loughran doesn't know yet what hit him in the house that Ruth built. He admitted as much yesterday.

Some had written that the blow landed between his eyes. One placed it astride the bridge of his nose. Others had it a good old right-hand poke on the jaw.

Tommy erases all the sharp-eyed observers by saying that Sharkey's right-hand punch landed on his left temple. Yesterday Tommy was around rubbing that same temple, and complaining of the soreness of the jaw.

"That is where it landed all right! I've had a terrific headache ever since. I hear noises and the rawness of my temple seems to indicate that that is where the blow landed.

"Just think of the thousands of right-handers I blocked, ducked or rolled with in my ten years of fighting and along comes Sharkey with his lucky punch and I have to get it.

"My opinion of Sharkey has not changed one bit and I'd fight him tonight and whip him. It doesn't sound nice for me to run him down as a fighter, especially as he knocked me out, but I can't change my opinion. I think he was a lucky fellow.

"They've been telling me all the stranke things I did in the ring that I asked for a chair to sit down. Maybe. I don't remember a word of it. Everything went blank, and I didn't come-to until I was going through the dressing room. Dressing room. Oh, he must have been lucky. There is nothing else to it."

Holy Cross Tackles St. John's in Opener

WORCESTER, Sept 28—Holy Cross opens its football season today, tussling on St. John's College of Brooklyn.

The visitors will field a much stronger aggregation than they have shown in past years and the fans will get their first peek at the 1929 edition of the fighting Crusaders that has been molded together minus some of the shining lights of recent years.

The general opinion among the followers of the O'Donnell machine is that the eleven has strong possibilities and may become a great club before the season closes.

The team spirit is fine and the boys have been brought along to a fine physical and mental condition. After considerable experimenting in practice, the line for the opening game is practically a veteran one while the backfield shows two new starters in Paddy Ryono, Washington boy, who has won the pivot job for the opener away from Barney Finn, Jersey boy, who had the edge because of experience.

B. C. High Defeats Jamaica Plain, 26-0

Boston College high had an easy time defeating Jamaica Plain high 26 to 0 at Billings Field, West Roxbury.

The Maroon and Gold used more than two complete teams and could have piled up a bigger score had it so desired, despite the absence of Nick Morris, regular quarterback, who broke his collar bone in the game with Cambridge Latin last week.

The winners had the advantage of one game under their belts, while this was Jamaica Plain's first clash.

AT THE DIAL

By BERT BRINKMANN
Radio Editor

MEASURES to insure public receptions of national events such as sports, which some private promoters are reluctant to have broadcast, was planned by the Radio Manufacturers' Association at a meeting of its board of directors in New York this week. Convinced that broadcasting of baseball, football, boxing contests and other sports actually increases paid attendance and is desired by the radio public, the board has taken steps to prevent possible loss of any such outstanding events from the air.

Except for the probable continuation of the Federal Radio Commission for another year, comparatively little important radio legislation is expected during the present session of Congress, the board was informed by C. G. Colby, of Boston, chairman of the legislative committee. The board approved the plan submitted by this committee to establish an information service in connection with all radio legislation in the States and important cities, to protect the interests of the radio public and the industry. The meeting was presided over by H. B. Richmond, of Cambridge, president of the association.

WILLIAM MUNDAY, who went from Atlanta, Ga., to Pasadena, Cal., to report a football game for the radio audience and who immediately "clicked" when he described a huddle as "that crap-shooting formation," has been engaged by the National Broadcasting Company to describe eight of the season's important pigskin contests over that company's network. His expert knowledge of football, his original phraseology and his enthusiastic manner of telling the story gained him his reputation. His first appearance this year as an NBC football announcer will be at the Yale-Georgia game on Oct. 12. He will also cover the Harvard-Army clash in Cambridge, Oct. 19.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general in charge of prohibition enforcement under President Coolidge, will speak on "Business and Professional Women" during Colliers Hour tonight through WBZ and the NBC system tomorrow evening. Miss Willebrandt, who is a member of the American, California and Los Angeles Bar Associations, will draw upon her experience in law enforcement official to illustrate the problems which confront women who embark on business or professional careers.

NO more familiar or inviting figure could be brought before the radio audience than the lovable personality of Mark Twain. His life, his manner, his works—all combine to produce a veritable challenge. As a writer, as a lecturer, as a human being in his way of life, he was always a challenger. The father of Huckleberry Finn, the man who always dressed in white, the author who smoked 30 cigars a day and did his writing in bed challenged critics, doctors and arbiters of etiquette. That is why the Lyric Challengers have chosen him as the feature of their sketch for tonight over WEEI.

BLAZING a new trail of activity, Commissioner Dr. George H. Bigelow has inaugurated a series of weekly messages from station WEEI, sponsored by the State Department of Public Health. The subject of his talk was "Adult Hygiene and Why," in which he declared that an intelligent public today demanded the principles of adult chronic disease. "Why isn't it as important to save the life of a middle-aged person as that of a child," he asked. "The value of public education in health cannot be over-estimated. We feel in creating a division of adult hygiene in the state of Connecticut that we are in the line of progress." The next talk in the series will be by Dr. Derric C. Parmenter on Oct. 4.

The hit and verve of the tango and the joyous abandon of other native dances are revealed in the Spanish program which the Marvin Musicians will broadcast through the NBC system, tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The program follows:

Jota Navarra	Serrano
Spanish Serenade	Chaminade
The Bandolero	Volpatti
Lucia, Chenea Espagnole	Lucena
Spanish Gypsy	Bowers
Beautiful Girls of Valencia (waltz)	Moreno
Cachuca (Spanish dance)	Mudler
La Paloma	Yradier

MAJOR EDWARD BOWES of "father" of the Capitol Theater Family, returns to that group and to a nation-wide radio audience tomorrow night. The return of the major will be heralded by Robert Denti, first trumpeter of the Capitol Grand Orchestra. The mentor of this famous organization has spent four weeks away from the microphone on a combined business and pleasure trip to California. His wife, the former Margaret Illington, accompanied Maj. Bowes on his return trip East. The program will be broadcast through WEAF, New York; WJAR, Providence, and a coast-to-coast NBC network.

RUSSIANS HOP PACIFIC, REST

Seward, Alaska, Sept. 28 (AP)—Four Russian aviators, having completed their flight across the storm-infested North Pacific Ocean, lingered today while their plane, the Land of the Soviets, was being made ready for its next hop to Seika. They are flying from Moscow to New York.

The Land of the Soviets arrived here late yesterday from Ratch Harbor, Unalaska Island, two hours ahead of a storm, covering 700 miles in eight hours, 12 minutes.

The fliers regarded the worst of the flight as over. They made plans to take off for Seika, 900 miles distant, tomorrow. From there they will fly to Seattle and to New York by way of San Francisco and Chicago.

PEABODY SWORN IN AS SHERIFF

Frederick T. Peabody of Melrose, chief deputy sheriff of Middlesex County courts at East Cambridge, has been appointed special sheriff by Sheriff John R. Fairbairn, to succeed Alvah S. Baker, retired.

Peabody was sworn in by Ralph N. Smith, clerk of courts, and Louing P. Jordan, register of probate, in the clerk's office, and received the congratulations of associates and other friends. He was appointed a court officer, Oct. 1, 1913, and made chief deputy sheriff Oct. 10, 1925.

8 MEN KILLED IN MINE BLAST

Poteau, Okla., Sept. 28 (AP)—Eight men were killed last night by an explosion and "after damp" in a mine at Bonanza, Coal Co., 12 miles north of here.

Hope was held until tonight for six of the eight, all of whom were in the mine at the time. Then a rescue crew reached a gas-filled chamber in which the missing miners lay.

Two miners Jeff Shelton and William Cates, both of Bonanza, were killed outright Cates' body was hurled 200 feet from the mouth of the mine.

The others were found huddled in a room at the extreme end of a passageway, killed by the lethal 'after damp' which filled the chamber here after the blast.

A volunteer rescue crew of miners worked all night in short shifts before they were able to penetrate to the bodies.

Bride Slain Near Torch Murder Scene

Greenburgh, N. Y., Sept 28 (AP)—Within a few miles of the spot where Earl F. Peacox attempted to burn the body of his wife, a bullet found the body of his bride, shot to death.

John Marshall, the butler, said he had started a search for her when she failed to return Thursday night to the estate of Henry Kelly, Jr., New York produce merchant, where both were employed, she as a cook. She was 24 and had been married eight months.

She had been shot below the heart with a shot gun at close range.

Two negro laborers were taken into custody and told of seeing another negro throwing from this windbreak carrying a shotgun.

District Attorney Frank H. Coyne, who handled the Peacox prosecution, assumed charge. No motive for the brutality of the slayer had been found.

Shoots a Scarecrow; Hides Out on Posse

Tuckahoe, N. J., Sept. 28 (AP)—John Dirocco will be careful of his shooting hereafter. Aiming at a hawk, he saw a figure fall and lay motionless. John fled and hid in a swamp 30 hours. A posse found him. He thought he was being hunted as a killer. It was a scarecrow he shot.

Mexican Uses Gun, 'Elects' Self Mayor

Mexico City, Sept. 28 (AP)—Jose Perez Vidal, candidate for mayor of Cuicatlan, Vera Cruz, settled the election Sunday by fatally shooting Gabriel Perez Bernal, his rival, says a report to El Universal Grafico.

Messages from Jalapa, capital of Vera Cruz, say the legislature has been flooded with complaints that the municipal elections were characterized by violence and declare the elections void and convoke new ones.

Heir to $3,000,000 Drowns in Bathtub

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Robert Randolph Ashner, a 30-year-old Brooklyn bachelor, who was to inherit $3,000,000 at the age of 40, provided he was of "good moral habits" and had "lawful living issue," was drowned in a bathtub at Stuttgart, Germany.

Ashner and his mother, the widow of a Brooklyn investment broker, were touring in Germany.

HEAR NOTHING FROM COSTE

LeBourget, France, Sept. 28 (AP)—If all is well, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte in their big sesquiplane Question Mark are somewhere over Siberia today, roaring on into the east in an effort to break the world's long distance flight record

At 8.16 o'clock today, 24 hours had elapsed since the plane left the Paris airport The Question Mark should have covered 2300 miles in that time. No word has been received since the plane passed over Cologne, Germany, early yesterday.

Tokio, Sept 28 (AP)—Dieudonne Coste reported to have flown from Le Bourget to Japan only to find he is a lawbreaker.

Immigration French ace failed to apply for official permission, required of foreign aviators when they fly over Japanese territory. Hence if he arrives here he will be a technical lawbreaker, although probably he will be hailed as a hero and receive a royal welcome.

STIRRED TO ACT IN ROTHSTEIN SLAYING

Banton Moves to Rush Trial of McManus as Foes of Walker Get Busy

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—The Rothstein case, which for six long months had slumbered peacefully in the recesses of civic memory, blazed across the headlines today as a sensation of the first magnitude.

Stirred into action by the threats, charges and counter-charges brought by opponents of Mayor James J. Walker in the forthcoming mayoralty election, Dist. Atty. Banton has prepared to try George McManus, brother of a police lieutenant, for the murder of the noted gambler at the earliest opportunity. Banton previously had sought to delay McManus' trial, pending Hyman Siller, also under indictment for the slaying, could be apprehended.

Other developments in the case are:

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion nominee for mayor, charged that Rothstein's private files contained a list purporting to show that the dead gambler had made a personal loan of $18,940 to City Magistrate Joseph E. Vitale, who is vice-chairman of the American-Italian branch of Mayor Walker's re-election committee. Magistrate Vitale admitted receiving the loan.

Frederick R. Coudert, Jr. G. O. P. fusion candidate to succeed Banton as district attorney, charged that certain important data and papers have been removed from the Rothstein files while they were in Banton's office.

Former Police Commissioner Richard Enright, independent candidate for mayor, and Governor Roosevelt for a legislative investigation of the Rothstein case, will be asked to testify on McManus' trial, according to Banton.

Taxies From Detroit to N. Y., Jumps Fare

Rochester, N. Y. Sept 28 (AP)—W. J. Ewen, Detroit taxi driver, is disillusioned. It looked like velvet when a fare in Detroit ordered him to drive to New York. The fare jumped the cab in Yonkers, next to the largest city in the country. Exhibiting the check he got his 700-mile trip, proprietor had to wire for money

Official Settles Deficit With Town

Providence, Sept. 28—Forced to make restitution or face prosecution at the hands of a Democratic town committee, Clerk Caleb M. Moffitt, ousted Republican tax collector, has given the Smithfield town council $3667.86, settling a shortage, it is said, which arose during the years he served under a Republican administration.

Mother Shows Joy as Peacox Escapes Chair

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 28 (INS)—"Thank God, the life of my boy has been saved."

So said Mrs. Catherine Peacox, mother of Earle F. Peacox, slayer of his wife Dorothy, as she commented upon the verdict of the jury.

"My boy's life has been saved and nothing can undo matters now," Mrs. Peacox.

The mother of the young slayer planned to visit him in his cell in the Westchester County jail today before he departs for Sing Sing prison to serve his sentence of from 20 years to imprisonment for life.

As soon as the courtroom crowd realized that Peacox was to live, even though he must spend what time he must be passed in prison, it broke into a subdued cheer and there was a tumult of applause, the doors were swung open and the spectators were hustled away.

COOLIDGES HIDE AT TRUMBULL'S

Fleetwood, Me., Sept. 28 (AP)—With Moosehead Lake for their front yard and a forest of evergreens in the back, the Coolidges, John and Florence settled down in the seclusion sought by honeymooners.

Twelve miles from neighbors, except a few occupants of a nearby camp, without even the comfort of telephones, they planned a weeks stay at Trumbull camp in the home of John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, father of Mrs. Coolidge. Their guide and companion was A. W. Van Dyke, the Trumbull guide, who met them at Greenville Junction.

Few townspeople were aware the Coolidges had arrived in Greenville, by motor down the lake, until they had departed. A motorboat awaited, and they left immediately. The automobile in which they motored from Plymouth, Vt., after a two-day visit at the Coolidge home in Ludlow, was parked in a Greenville garage.

4 Hurt When Auto Runs Into Trolley

An automobile operated by Philip Nadey, 21, of 235 Shawmut ave., was in collision with a trolley car at St. Mary's st. and Commonwealth ave. last night, sending the four occupants to the hospital in the Commonwealth Ave. Hospital.

The injured are the driver, who sustained a cut right hand; Miss Maria Costello, 19, of 69 Parkman st., West End; Miss Jean Verby, 18, of 28 Barton st., and Mike Nikof of 335 Shawmut ave. They sustained bad cuts and bruises.

FARM BOARD TO FINANCE CO-OP. MARKETING

Senate Hearing Shows Hoover Agricultural Commission Won't Control the Crops

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Testimony before the Senate agriculture committee is regarded as establishing definitely that the Federal Farm Board intends to approach the agricultural problem by developing and expanding co-operative marketing and that it will not itself engage in any stabilization operations to control crop surpluses

This intention announced by Chairman Legge shortly after the board was organized, has been reaffirmed by members examined by the committee

The reaffirmation of these principles is regarded at the Capitol as much more significant than the original pronouncement, because the board recently has been subjected to severe criticism by senators from the west for declining to use a $500,000,000 revolving fund in wheat stabilization operations. Some committee members contend if the Senate confirms the board members on the basis of their testimony before the committee, the board's principles will have been approved.

Examinations of the board members by the committee has adduced, however, that while the board does not intend to put the government into stabilization operations, it has not determined to prevent commodity groups themselves from so doing. Chairman Legge, in fact, said stabilization might be necessary and desirable in some commodities, but he emphasized that it should be conducted by strong, national cooperative marketing agencies with sufficient credit, marketing, storing and processing channels to give reasonable assurance of success.

Some committeemen believe the testimony also has disclosed a determination on the board to create national marketing agencies for each of the principal crops as soon as possible

LETTERS FROM READERS

Thanks American for 1st Corps News

Editor Boston American:

The 1929 summer tour of camp duty of the First Corps of Cadets having been completed I have had occasion to examine the file of newspaper clippings, and I want to thank your excellent paper for the accurate, prompt and helpful articles published during July.

The Corps is the only National Guard regiment to go to camp overstrength, and the writer believes that the fine type of news dispatches the press of Boston has been giving the organization, both at camp and in the armory work is in no small degree responsible for its splendid reputation and public support.

I only wish, therefore, to let this opportunity pass to express the appreciation of my entire command.

Asks More Singing for Chapel Service

Editor Boston American:

Students say chapel is "on the rack" in Radcliffe, may I venture a suggestion. The usual college chapel service is very tame and unattractive. It is not that students object so much to the chapel service, as they do to the manner of conducting it. Change, the manner of conducting a service of this kind by having more singing, or if it is thought best to have a speaker, let him be one who will be interesting, and who will not preach a sermon.

Should Be Proud of Ship Nantucket

Editor Boston American:

May I say a good word through your paper in behalf of the ship Nantucket of the Massachusetts Nautical School. I have just read that the ship has returned from its four months' cruise in the Mediterranean.

There is no better training for young men anywhere else than right on that ship. It appeals to the adventuresome spirit of youth. In one voyage their tastes are met in this direction.

The physical, moral and mental training on that ship is wholesome. I can hear witness to this in a particular instance. Instead of one ship doing this work, we should have six for New England. Let us be proud of the Nantucket.

Have Settees for Waiting Pedestrians

Editor Boston American:

Streets are becoming more congested than ever in Boston. Pedestrians are fast losing their rights on Tremont st. during the busy hours of the day. A few days ago, I stood by the Parker House just 10 minutes before the signal was given to let pedestrians cross that Red Sea of traffic.

I should advise that settees be placed on the sidewalk in front of the Parker House to allow pedestrians to see the parade of autos and to avoid the auto driver diving into School st.

Says Play Up Faults of Men

Editor Boston American:

As a young woman credited with some common sense, I ask why writers of plays and books which Boston places under the ban, are popular with certain people, because they show up the shortcomings of a woman.

Every novel off color, lately, with two exceptions, charge women with all sorts of irregularities. This feature seems to be at the bottom of these productions.

Let the weakness, immorality and inconsistency of women be thrown on the screen in the plots of novels and plays. Play up the men. Give them a precedence over women for a while to prove that they are not saints, and are subjected to the same irregularities that have for so long been played up about women. Here is a case in court only recently. The woman gets five years and the man three months for the same offense. Both were guilty in the same degree. Does this not jar you?

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

WHENEVER a pimple is opened it is best to apply some mild antiseptic solution. Skin blemishes may start from too much squeezing and rubbing of the skin, which may damage the outermost layer or epidermis. When they spread they are the cause of considerable pain and discomfort..

VELVET AND FOX ARE ALL THE RAGE IN PARIS

Navy Blue Charmeline Also Wins Approval

Fox hunting is popular in Paris! And it is carried out with the aid of an automobile and a check book, and the quarry can be quickly run to earth in the atelier of almost any designer here. From this, you will surmise that fox has established itself as the fur of the season. Combined with velvet it reaches new heights of beauty, and is much the most successful alliance for both day and evening wraps. All shades of fox are employed, natural, silver and beige tones are of course, as ever, in constant demand.

The little "dressmaker" frock continues its busy career. This Cinderella of the fashion world made its real debut last spring, but this season will see it firmly established as an important item of the wardrobe of the busy women. For in such a frock, one can walk, shop, lunch, keep business appointments and be assured of being happily and appropriately dressed. Which is half the battle on a busy day.

To illustrate the velvet and fox merger, we have selected Patou's new wrap. It is in a lovely shade of dark green, and the cotton velvet is very light and supple. Band appliques of the material slope toward the center of the back, following the ham line which takes a pronounced drop, reaching almost to the heels at the back. The large upstanding collar, the cuffs and the full border are all of red fox. There is a strong circular movement at the sides and back that is very smart.

There is much of interest in the Tollman model of navy blue charmeline, also shown. This delightful gown features the new wide collar that fastens to one side, and flaring butcher cuffs of white silk with encrustations in bands of yellow silk alternating with the fabric of the frock. There is a circular draping at one side of the skirt, starting from beneath the flat pleatings around the hipline. The zig zag yoke of the bodice fastens at the left side with small flat buttons. This dress is ideal for all-day wear during the early autumn

LABOR-SAVING IDEAS

Mrs. Lilla P. Cross, assisting Martha Lee at the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser free cooking school to be held next week, beginning Monday afternoon, at the Imperial Ballroom, Hotel Statler, will bring new light to housekeeping problems by revealing many helpful and economical truths, often forgotten in the pressure of every day routine.

Mrs. Lilla P. Cross

She will stress the point that not any new idea or method in cookery or housekeeping must save time, labor and energy in order that the wife and mother may have more time for social and cultural interests.

Mrs. Cross has had broad experience as an authority before thousands of women, and realizes that very little is needed right in her own home. There will be no theories expounded at the cooking school, no revolutionary ideas about returnishing the kitchen, nor any expectation of teaching an audience of experienced housewives how to cook.

The lectures are arranged to ease the most troublesome phases of kitchen practice, all by actual demonstration upon the stage with carefully selected equipment. All recipes used will be printed and distributed to the audiences, to be taken home and put into practice.

Equipment for the stage at the Hotel Statler is just about ready for the opening Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Grover Brown merchants have shown a very liberal spirit in co-operating with Martha Lee to make the school a success.

Arrangements have been completed for 25 filled market baskets to be given away each day, in addition to the presentation of the various cakes, puddings, meat dishes, etc., prepared by Mrs. Cross at each session. The major gifts are to be distributed on Thursday.

The lectures will continue for four sessions, beginning on next Monday, running through Thursday afternoon, with the doors of the Imperial Ballroom of the Hotel Statler opening at 1 o'clock, to give early comers a choice of the better seats. Many occasions will arise for the audience to ask questions, and the audience should come prepared to make notes

LESSONS FEATURES

The following recipes will be used Monday afternoon at the Hotel Statler, with a complete demonstration by Mrs. Lilla P. Cross:

BREAKFAST SAUSAGE
(Novel Style)

Grease baking pan. Put potatoes in pan and cover with seasoned tomatoes. Arrange sausages on top. Bake about 25 minutes in a moderately hot oven 350 degrees F.

Fold in the whites which have been beaten until stiff. Fill greased baking dish or custard cups with the mixture and bake at 200 degrees F. about 25 minutes.

FADS AND FASHIONS

Seniors and Freshmen can have the same likes, and everyone of the college misses is going to sport some kind of a woolen cardigan suit, with a jersey blouse. Loosely woven wool is very swanky, and comes in brown, black and white, or greenish mixtures. The skirts have a slight flare, while the coats can be had in various lengths.

Even Orphan Annie never had such ragged frocks as some of my lady's choicest creations. All her scant collars as well as some of her girdles have fringed, ragged edges. This new edging is also very effective when used at the cuffs, or along the lapels of a cardigan dress.

GOOD PLAYGROUNDS

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

As the cities grow larger and we live more closely, the backyards of yesterday shrink into plots the size of a pocket handkerchief, and some disappear entirely. But children continue to come into the world and as we must continue to provide adequate play spaces for them.

Many of you on your summer rides are already contemplating the fall moving season which will take you into larger and more comfortable homes. You are peering out of your car and sighting modern apartments or separate homes. Along with the consideration of modern refrigeration and built-in beds, sanitary garbage disposal and shining tiled bathrooms, I think the younger members of the families should come in for a little thought. Is there a playground near to your dream home? Where will the children get fresh air and exercise?

You can't put up a paper now without reading of the opening of new recreation centers and playgrounds under competent supervision. Many wide-awake real estate dealers are featuring in their advertising the fact that the new subdivision has an up-to-date playground for the children. All that is necessary to make every real estate dealer consider the welfare of children is that every prospective owner or purchaser demand that a playground be present in the newly opened additions. The Playground and Recreation Association of America has done much toward promoting this idea among the men who work at providing housing for families.

Children over four and five years need the companionship of other children. They require competitive games in order to grow. In these games and activities they must have adequate adult supervision lest the sports deteriorate into gang activities. They need well run public playgrounds. No one can see that through these things except the individual most interested in their welfare.

I like President Hoover's statement concerning the aims of the conference on child welfare when he says, "It is not the purpose of these efforts to invade or relieve the responsibilities of parents, but to advance those activities in care and protection of children which are beyond the control of the individual parent."

And that if all we can ever expect of any organization, the advancement of the activities in child welfare which are beyond the control of the individual parent. But most of the activities are not beyond the control of parents. Most of them are direct responsibilities of the parent. And among these responsibilities, which are uniquely those of mother and father, is the necessity of demanding that in crowded districts there be some provision made for proper play and recreation of the children. Your children must have a place for out-of-door exercise. It must be guarded by a competent adult. And to get this you must demand it when you rent or buy. No organization can give you this very necessary adjunct to your child's growth without your personal effort toward it.

Backyards are gone. Children are still here and still playing. If they haven't a backyard they will play in the streets. It is your part toward encouraging good playgrounds.

Girl Seeks a Boy Friend

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of sixteen. All the other girls I know have boy friends, but I have none. I am basketful. I am stout and I laugh all the time. But I am nice-looking. Please tell me how to overcome this boy.

SELMA.

YOUR letter states, Selma dear, that you are stout, bashful and giggle all the time.

A cheerful disposition is fine Curves are more beautiful than straight lines. A little shyness is preferable to noisy self-assertiveness. Still, I would suggest that you try to grow a little more slender through eating plain, well-balanced food and cutting out candy and sundaes. Reserve your laughter until there is something to laugh at. Avoid hysterical giggles and you loud laugh that speaks of vacant mind. Last but not least, forget your bashfulness. Treat boys just as you do girls, and if you try to make them feel "comfy" by being "comfy" and natural yourself, I believe these suggestions, if you follow them faithfully, will make you more interesting to your folks.

COMPLEXION MASKS

By MARIA ZERITZA

MANY women believe that the use of clay as an aid to feminine beauty is a new idea. On the contrary, mud or clay complexion masks have been used for ages past by famous beauties. But is is only of late years that this and other carefully-guarded feminine secrets, many of them the heritage of families noted for the loveliness of their women—have been given to the world.

There are countless varieties of beauty masks. Egg masks, for instance, are valuable, because the egg pulls together and holds firm, any flaby, distended pores and tissues, thereby drawing them in. Almond meal is made the base of other complexion masks. But clay containing a certain mineral elements—not ordinary clay, of course —is the outstanding favorite among complexion packs and masks.

Fuller's earth is the variety of clay oftenest used for these masks for the reason that Fuller's earth has certain elements that cause it to draw toward itself, whatever is on or just under the surface of the skin. The good results are twofold: small blemishes and impurities are drawn to the surface of the skin, whence they can be removed; and, secondly, the blood is pulled to the surface, toning the skin until it tingles, and improving circulation through the face and neck.

If you prefer a white to a gray beauty pack, buy kaolin, which is a refined form of Fuller's earth and use it in the same way you would the coarser clay.

To make the paste for the mask, add to a saucerful of Fuller's earth or kaolin, enough witch-hazel to make a liquid of the consistency of very thick whipping-cream. Now cleanse your face, neck and ears well, either with soap and water or else with cold cream. If you use cold cream, remove the excess cream carefully, then sponge your face with warm water to open the pores.

Apply the paste to your face and neck on your fingertips. You needn't be afraid of using too much. Blend it smoothly, keeping your face as relaxed and free from expression as possible. Do not talk so, for the mask will harden in half a minute and hold your features stiffly.

Lie down, close your eyes and rest 15 minutes, with the mask on your face and neck. Then wash it off with tepid water and, as a finishing touch, pat your face and neck with ice-cold water or better still run a lump of ice over them, patting the skin dry very gently.

You will be delighted with the velvety pink and white, clean look of your complexion. If you wish a bleaching mask, add a few drops of tincture of benzoin to the witch-hazel before making the paste. Fresh lemon juice can be used with Fuller's earth to make a still stronger bleaching pack.

I do not advise the daily use of the clay complexion mask, for the reason that it is rather drastic in its purging effect on the pores. But use of a complexion mask once or twice weekly can bring only good results and should have a wonderfully rejuvenating effect when applied at the end of a tiring day, before going out for the evening.

BIRTHDAY CANDLES

By MRS. BEECKMAN

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

In regard to candles on a birthday cake, please advise me which is correct—the exact number to represent the age of the person celebrating the birthday, or is it customary to add an extra candle? PUZZLED

SOMETIMES an extra candle is added for "good luck," but ordinarily the number represents the number of years

(Of course when that number needs suppression, or when we think that it does, the number often is 15 or three or one')

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me whether the boy or girl should ask "Hello" first when meeting on the street?

JEANNE.

The girl is given the privilege of speaking first, of acknowledging an acquaintanceship with a boy.

THE styles change in columnwriting, as in everything else. When bobbed sentiments and jazzy topics are in fashion, it's no use to go on being subtle and romantic. You are speaking a dead language.

Love was the popular topic of the day when I began writing this column. Now it's "Win a Woman a Love," "How to Charm a Man," "How to Get a Husband." How to flirt, how to vamp, how to play the game. All these were the intriguing and absorbing subjects on which we rang the merry changes.

HOLLYWOOD DIET

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

THE latest fad is the so-called "Hollywood diet." By means of it, as you well know, gross fullness is to return to a figure that is larger and heavier than it should be or which its owner does not like the way it is.

To reducing in general when practiced sanely and sensibly there can be no valid objection.

It is agreed, of course, that the average individual, man or woman, eats too much.

Overweight not only is unsightly, it is bad for health. But how to reduce is the big question The individual who does it thoughtlessly not only may impair his general physical strength, he may even put his life in jeopardy.

The "Hollywood diet" is supposed to reduce a person a pound a day for 18 days. Likely most diets, it excludes entirely fats, starches and sugars. What it stresses for food are lettuce, tomatoes, grapefruit and such articles as contain a lot of protein.

It is reported that this diet is taking the popular fancy everywhere and may soon sweep the country.

At the same time, it is being reported that such diseases as anemia, jaundice acidosis are being contracted by the followers of the diet.

These diseases mentioned are, to some extent, being caused by malnutrition. That is, the diet adherents who have been made ill are starving themselves to the point where their own illnesses are being burned up for the purpose of creating a sufficient amount of energy to keep body and mind agoing.

To be sure, whenever a person goes on a reducing diet, no matter what it may be or how scientifically planned, she is, in effect, consuming her own tissues.

I use the feminine pronoun because women are the ones who are more concerned with reducing than men. Indeed, reducing to some becomes a veritable obsession. They never fail before talking about it, thinking about it or doing something about it.

The body requires energy to carry on. This energy is supplied by the food we eat and drink and by the air we breathe.

When this intake of food is more than the body needs, the overplus is stored in the tissues in the form of fat, and obesity soon results

But when this intake is less than the body requires for normal and ordinary functioning this excess fat is drawn upon and burned, as it were, to take up the necessary supply.

Sometimes reducing is highly desirable. Overweight is nothing to be proud of, and it may even be dangerous. But bear in mind that certain people tend to slight overweight at least, and to reduce then, especially in such a drastic fashion as these faddish diets, is almost like taking one's life in his own hands.

Never try strenuous diets of any kind

In the first place, eat sparingly, but enough, and keep the weight from mounting.

Secondly, consult your doctor always before you diet and let him prescribe what you should or should not eat for you.

A KISS FOR CORRINA

By MAY CHRISTIE
CHAPTER 27

"Then what in thunder—?" The nostrils of his small pug nose were inflated with anger.

Corinna flushed. The other operators had scurried off at the boss' advent. She said, a little quiver in her voice: "I don't care to wait on her."

"Don't care?" he mimicked her. "This is a business firm, and not a cats' tea party! Who do you think you are to start this Bolshevistic talk? What's the big idea?" He glared at her. "Where'd I be where'd anybody be . . . with these high hat, choosey ideas of serving the customers? You tell me that?"

She did not answer

"Now listen here, my girl. You climb down from your perch or it'll go badly with you. Miss Van Wyck brought me some of my best trade, and who offends her goes . . . . no waiter what's the right or wrong of it. Get that straight. And remember you're a working girl, and she could buy and sell you a thousand times in a minute. So you'll be civil to her. And if I hear anything to the contrary, there'll be trouble."

* * *

Back in her own booth, and sitting it with shaking hands, Corinna told herself

"I was a fool. The girls were right. I'll only lose my job if I refuse to serve her."

Summer was coming on. It would be next to impossible to get another position. At least, never one of this high-class caliber.

Hadn't she earned $60 a week on an average, working in the shop in the past month? And a good $30 was coming to her for her sachets and other bits of needlework!

Wasn't her mother far from strong, and badly needing her daughter's financial assistance?

What would happen to her mother if she should now lose her excellent job in Julius'?

So Corinna—although smarting from the boss's sharp rebuke, and hating the very thought of having to tend the predatory Van Wyck woman—wisely forced herself to take the right perspective on the situation.

But she wouldn't kow-tow to Van Wyck, no, no, no, indeed!

And she wouldn't let her sex she nonsense in the least about the incidents of the morning. Why, even Denise had practically kidnapped Mabel.

Pretend she hadn't noticed anything Glorify her own good time, her own success, quite in the Van Wyck manner.

That was the only possible attitude!

'So we meet again?" said her blonde customer with what was meant to be a good-natured wink of her over-plucked eyebrows, as she sank into the chair in Corinna's booth and regarded herself in the mirror. "When I saw you the other night at the ball, you could have knocked me down with a feather!"

Drawled Corinna, with equal nonchalance: "Really? I thought I told you I went out quite a bit in the evenings?"

Denise wanted to ask: "With the same man?" but expediency stopped her. Such a question might bring information of a sort she didn't wish to hear . . . might involve a situation that would be awkward to handle

And why antagonize the girl? She still had access to young Craig —might influence him against her. Matters—much better—to be friendly.

"You certainly made a great hit with your cousin Mortimer. He's got shoals of girls after him, too —so you ought to feel flattered. He's very particular."

"Both he and Mr. van Tuyl were extremely nice to me," ventured Corinna. She recalled Monsieur Julian came into the booth

"The Countess de Santalves—as she insisted my guests be in my studio—grew more and more restless."

She felt a longing for she knew not what

Could it be love? Had she really ever understood the meaning of the term?

Like Denise Van Wyck, to an outsider it would seem that she had practically everything she wanted. And a little as well.

How she had struggled and plotted for the prestige of a title! But now it had given her an entire to places she had never set foot in before her marriage, the whole thing somehow seemed to have become flat and tame

In the dining room that led from her study she was moving about beautifully furnished, she poured herself a stiff drink.

The Thrilling, Vivid STORY OF A RACKETEER

Rico Plans to Flee Rivals

CHAPTER 33

RICO was acutely conscious of his position. A lonely Youngstown yegg in a hostile city without friends or influence. Yeah, funny! Just a no-account yap in a burg like Hammond and not four months ago he had been a big guy in a big burg.

He put on his ulster and went out. The wind was cold and it was snowing. He walked around for a while, keeping to the dark streets, then, chilled through, he went into a little restaurant for a cup of coffee and a sandwich

The waiter, a boy with a handsome dark face, brought Rico his food. When he set it down on the table he grinned and said:

"Well, happy New Year."

Rico looked up in surprise.

"Yeah," he said, "thanks."

He felt better. This anonymous friendliness cheered him up. While he was eating, he watched the boy, who was wiping off the counter and singing:

"Okies Kid," thought Rico.

When Rico had finished his coffee, he lit a cigarette and sat smoking. He felt comfortable. Looking around the restaurant, he saw that there was a mechanical piano up front. Take Peter's!

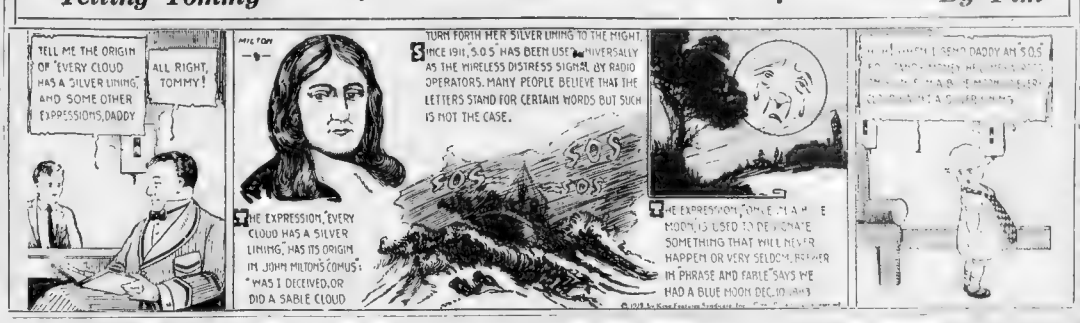
"Say," he called, "let's have a little music."

"Sure," said the boy

He put a slug in the piano. It played "Farewell To Thee in tremolo. Rico felt sad. He called the boy back and gave him a dollar.

"Keep the change, kid," he said.

"Telling Tommy" -:- -:- -:- By Pim



The mechanical piano stopped on a discord, and Rico got to his feet. While he was putting on his coat two men came in the front door. One of them went up to the counter and ordered a cup of coffee, but the other stopped and stood staring at Rico.

Rico, noticing the man's scrutiny, put his hand inside his coat and started out, but the man touched him on the shoulder and whispered.

"Things ain't going so good, are they, Rico?"

Rico stared at the man and demanded.

"Who the hell are you?"

Then he recognized him. It was Little Arnie's doorman, Joseph Pavlovsky, one of the guys he had chased.

"I'm one of Arnie's boys," said Pavlovsky. "I been in Hammond ever since you gave us the rush."

"Yeah?" said Rico

"Straight," said Pavlovsky. "I been in the beer racket over here and I cleaned up. I'm going back to the big burg next month."

Rico envied him.

"Yeah," said Rico

"You sure pulled one on 'em Rico," said Pavlovsky; "you always was a smart boy, Rico."

"Aw, can that," said Rico, and, pulling away from Pavlovsky, he went out.

The wind was blowing hard now and it had stopped snowing. Rico turned up his coat collar and started toward Sansotta's. But he hadn't gone half a block when he realized that he was being followed. He turned just in time to see two men pass under an arc light.

"It's Little Arnie's boy, he said, "looking for seven grand."

Rico took out his gun, got behind a telephone pole and fired a warning shot. The two men ran for cover and Rico ducked down an alley, ran for two blocks, then turned up another alley. I doubled back. He had lost them.

When the look-out let him in he said

"Louis, the boss wants to see you."

Rico went up to Sansotta's room

"Well?" he said to Sansotta.

"Come, said Sansotta, "a friend of mine is putting out for Toledo tomorrow night. He'll take you for five bucks."

"What's his game?"

"Running dope

"It's O. K. with me," said Rico

Rico went up to his room, took off his overcoat and flung himself down on the bed. He have to pull out now whether he wanted to or not.

The dope-runner dropped Rico at the edge of the town. It was about 5 o'clock in the morning and cold. Dark. A wind was blowing in from Lake Erie and a damp cold was in the air.

MAINE'S RAILS ENTER BEST SEASON

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Maine railroads are entering their best season of the year, along with other New England lines. The harvest season, however, really means more to big Maine carriers, one of which is known as the "Potato

Morrill McDonald

Railroad," than to others. A notable bit of progress is noted by the Maine Central, of which Morrill McDonald is president. This line reports a surplus after charges for the first eight months of the year of $956,002, against $678,726 in the like period of 1928.

Mr. McDonald joined the Maine Central in 1895 and became president in 1914. Then Governor Jr was elected president of the Boston & Maine, several such roads re president in that year. We do no recall another instance of an individual serving two major New England carriers as president in a dual role. Back in 1923 Mr. McDonald urged consolidation of the Maine Central, Bangor & Aroostook and the line from Portland to Worcester on the Boston & Maine with the New York Central.

He suggested the rest of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven might be merged to advantage as the nucleus of a southern New England unification. This was in the days when railroad executives were looked forward to more seriously than many look at roads in them today. There was an idea in the old days that some big mergers might be soon achieved but the years have rolled past with "nothing doing."

Bangor & Aroostook's surplus for the first eight months of 1929 is $777,156, against surplus after charges of $664,527 for the corresponding period last year, and surplus after charges of $730,187 for the first eight months of 1927.

"Perhaps the importance of the freight service rendered by the railways of this country has never been more forcibly illustrated," says the Railway Age, "than by the data given in a report recently made public by the Bureau of Statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which estimates are given of the value at destination of all commodities transported by rail in 1928. The aggregate value of the commodities carried in revised tons is placed at $60,870,000,000, and the value of those carried in less than carload quantities as $7,391,000,000, a total of about $68,300,000,000.

Head of a big life insurance company is the most set himself firmly on record against putting the dollar of his company into common stocks. Doing just that, however, is what has placed $270,000,000 in policies on paper for Sun Life Insurance Co. of Canada during the past year. Sun's investments include shares in numerous sound New England companies.

Every investment advisor knows that the common stocks of some companies are entitled to sell considerably higher rating than the best bonds of some other companies. It all depends upon the individual companies under consideration.

Another field in which a little discretion might be used in stock is a news topic is the investment trust field. Yesterday the financial district was reported as rushed because "investment trusts were at the same time buying and selling." That investment trusts act collectively is hardly to be supposed. They might well at the same time be buying some issues and selling others, just the same as individuals do. Investment trusts should be considered individually, not as a group, because they differ quite as much as do individuals.

Electric Rates Reduced, Increase in Consumption

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Most of us have to foot bills for electricity or gas. Many of us have to buy electric power directly or indirectly for the cost of the electric power by which enters into modern industrial production.

B. C. Forbes

What we want to know concerning this tremendous revolution is: Is it resulting in effecting? Since one pound of coal can now do the work of two pounds, and mass production is cheapest, will a reasonable part of the lowered cost go into the Smith family's pocket?

Or will it all be retained by the companies to justify the extraordinary rise in the quotations for their shares?

* * *

That is the crux of the whole matter. That is the question facing our utility leaders and their powerful banking colleagues.

Without here and now attempting to forecast what the answer will be, let me pass on to you this personal letter received from President R. E. Hellard of Southern California Edison:

"In course of a speech you made in San Francisco you referred to Electric Light Association you told us all to say, 'Say it with rates.' This slogan has been commented upon frequently since then.

"You will, therefore, be interested in the attached clipping from this morning's Los Angeles Examiner outlining another very substantial voluntary reduction in rates made by our company. When we made the first cut in 1927, from 8½¢ to 8.5¢ per kilowatt hour for domestic consumers, the average consumption per residence on our system was 450 kilowatt hours per annum. For the year ended July 31 of this year the average consumption of our 427,000 domestic consumers was 615 kilowatt hours, an average increase per consumer of about 40 per cent.

"Of course this plan of voluntarily reducing rates from time to time popularizes the service of the corporation in addition to performs a real service to the housewife in making the cost of electricity cheaper and cheaper, thereby encouraging the use by her of more electrical appliances to lighten the burden of cares in the home, such as vacuum sweepers, washing machines, electric refrigerators and electric ranges. Is not this 'saying it with rates?'"

BROKER LOANS MYSTERY IS EXPLAINED

By JULIUS G. BERENS.

New York, Sept. 28—A fact little appreciated in the mystery surrounding the continued expansion in brokers' loans is the all-important part they are playing in financing the entire world. Such loans no longer are exclusively "brokers'" loans. Their total reflects in great part financing of foreign industries. Many investment trusts, finding their opportunities for profitable banking in this country limited now, are extending elsewhere loans to foreign industries. This is particularly true in Germany.

Such investment trusts extending these loans, in effect, become bankers for the world. Yet their accretion in part were held in brokerage accounts here or in the banks and loans against them go to swell the total of "brokers'" loans.

"Mysterious" increase in loans this week reflects transfer of large borrowings from London to New York.

So many people regard the investment trusts as exclusively bullish influences that it is worthwhile remembering that these very trusts might for a temporary period become the most bearish factor in the market. There has been tremendous speculation in the new offerings of investment trust securities.

Many people have been subscribing to such offerings in the hope that enthusiasm would immediately carry the quotations substantially above the offering price. Of late this enthusiasm has been lacking for all but a very few issues.

The subscribers in many of the disappointing offerings have immediately thrown the stocks they were allotted into their speculative accounts. Then the proceeds of the prime factors in expansion of brokers' loans. Until such issues are thoroughly absorbed the bank market is forced to carry the load.

Banking consolidations, requiring sizeable purchases of bank stocks, have been an important influence in swelling loan total.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Curnett & Co.—Although a few high-priced public utility stocks have been selling relatively low during the week the market in general has been subjected to continued bearish attack. There has been of the character classed as "bear drives" but has appeared to be the current liquidation which cannot believe that the unsound technical position has been corrected and that no credit position is anything like what we would wish to see it.

Hayden, Stone & Co.—The market is steadily becoming more and more professionalized. With few exceptions rising than falling. In view of general business and high money, it is only especially favorable positions in individual companies that would seem to warrant commitments at this juncture.

Clark, Childs & Co.—We think that general stock market weakness at this time will prove to be a temporary matter rather than reversal of the major trend. But we would not be surprised to see a period of relative inactivity prior to the renewal of a real upward trend.

Gas Consumption at Record Peak

A record output of gas for this time of the year in its territory was established by Public Service Electric and Gas Company during the recent cold snap. On September 18 the company supplied nearly 90 million cubic feet of gas to consumers in 24 hours. The average daily consumption for eight days of this month has been between 70 and 75 million cubic feet.

Not only does the gas output of September 19 establish a new seasonal record for Public Service, but it comes within some two million cubic feet of the company's highest record for any day—over 92 million cubic feet on January 14 last.

Mattress Output Is Increased 50 P. C.

Chicago, Sept. 28 (INS)—Production of spring construction for mattress manufacturers by the Nachman-Spring Filler Corporation has been increased over 50 per cent in the last month and will be increased another 50 per cent in the next 30 days, it was announced today. The company is now producing 2000 spring mattress units per day.

FINE POINTS OF MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

Recently I found two acquaintances of mine in the throes of a warm discussion as to whether heat was cheaper by coal or oil.

I don't know who finally won the argument, but even though oil heating is a more expensive proposition for the home, it strikes me that the more important thing to consider is that modern inventiveness has discovered ways and means for oil to heat the home that the old-fashioned coal furnace has not been able to measure up to.

Betty Bonnell

Unless a woman has been fast asleep for many years, she surely knows by this time that an automatic oil-heating unit eliminates a thousand and one furnace-tending chores. With coal heating, the basement must be visited constantly to shovel new coal into the furnace, remove ashes, shake down the fire, "bank" it at night, "fire" it in the morning, and sweeping out the accumulating dust which manages to poke its way upstairs and cover the walls and furniture.

And while all this goes on, the heat of the house is constantly varying, going from one extreme to the other and hardly ever maintaining for any length of time the best and most desired temperature.

Looking at it in this way, we come to realize that actual comparison of cost is not the correct basis on which one should decide whether to retain the old furnace or install an oil burner. Certainly, we wouldn't think of comparing gas with electric illumination on the basis of cost!

There are, of course, many different types of oil burners on the market and, frankly, I wouldn't dare single out any one of them to recommend to you, since most of the better known types are built to a high standard of efficiency.

My only advice to you is to shop carefully and consider the type of factory as well as the type of store or distributor from whom you decide to make your purchase.

It is no secret that oil burners occasionally require servicing for adjustments or repairs and your safest investment is the burner that is represented by the most reliable type of maker and distributor, who stand ready to render you immediate and expert service whenever you are compelled to call upon them.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of Modern Homes will be sent to you, if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

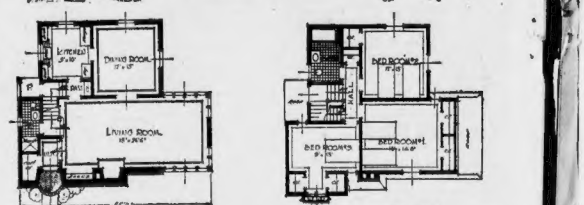
Brick and Stucco House, at $11,000



CHARMING HOUSE OF CHARACTER

By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.

THIS house, A-181, seems to suggest a sense of quiet security where one could enter and close the door on the outside world. A home could not possess a more sterling quality.

The deep doorway, flanked by solid brick walls unpierced by window openings, the over hanging timbered gable, give this house character. The half-timbered bay, with its rows of casement windows, admits a flood of light to the living room.

The walls are of clinker brick, rough cast stucco and hand dazed weather boards. The roof is of shingles in variegated shades of red.

The plan shows an entrance well-protected in stormy weather, an entrance vestibule with a large coat closet. This vestibule is two steps below the level of the living room floor.

The living room is exceptionally large for a plan of this size, the space usually occupied by the sun porch having been included. The dining room is a comfortable size and the kitchen small, but convenient.

On the first stair landing is arranged a toilet room with shower, which can be readily used from either floor.

The second floor shows three roomy bedrooms and an ample supply of closets. A servant's room and bath, cedar closet and storage space are provided on the third floor.

The cellar extends under the entire house.

Cost about $11,000.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Refer to House A-181.

Three Fighters Win First Round

Dr. Robert Watson, the Rev. A. Z. Conrad and the Rev. Lynn J. Radcliffe are now at the forefront of the fight to bar "The Strange Interlude" from any and all theaters in Greater Boston. At the ministers' meetings last Monday these three were criticized as the clergymen who had been discredited last year for their attack on conditions in the State House "without sufficient proof." Dr. Watson at the Baptist meeting and the Rev. Dr. Radcliffe at the Methodist meeting both turned the tide in their favor when they pointed to present conditions at the State House as the direct result of their campaign. Liquor, they pointed out, is no longer stored beneath the sacred cod.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a stenographic department and the best are advertised daily in the For Hire columns.

"CAVE MAN" IN INTENSELY COLD "HOME"

By CHESTER B. HOPE

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

Normandin, Que. (Received via runner from camp at the juncture of the Mistocoponamo and Washmeska rivers), Sept. 22—Somewhere about 30 miles north of us, Bert McConnell, the New York editor, who left a comfortable apartment and a swivel chair, is naked and alone in the wilderness, beginning his "cave man" experiment.

We now have the last of him for a while today when he left for the northern wilderness accompanied by Chief Forestry Inspector Andrew McKibbin. McKibbin has not returned to our camp as yet, although he is expected today.

McConnell's trip into the wilderness alone was delayed because of experiments with the automatic cameras with which he expects to record his encounters with bears, moose and fish. Most of the equipment is quite new and McConnell found that some of the adjustments were out of kilter.

INTENSELY COLD AT NIGHT

As we camped on the Jimmie Lake, the day was cloudy and cool. McConnell, perched up in the bow of one canoe, was glad enough to have a blanket to sit on and wrap around his knees. We did not talk about the cold weather, however. For all of us, including McConnell, knew that within 24 hours he would be wandering in the wilderness with no hope of a blanket except one of leaves or of whatever material he may be able to find for himself.

The spot he has chosen for his experiment is by no means a beautiful or comfortable one at this time of the year. It is becoming cool during the daytime and intensely cold at night. His territory is situated between the basins of the Mistassini and Ashuapmouchouan rivers. It abounds in moose, caribou, trout, blueberries and whitefish and McConnell should have plenty to eat—once he is able to fashion his own weapons.

Chief Inspector McKibbin has notified all rangers to keep off the territory, which covers a radius of 30 miles. All Indians—and there are quite a few in the vicinity of Lake St. John, to our south—have been shooed away.

HAUNTED ISLAND

Before McKibbin left us with his cave man explorer, he assured us that in traversing the three small lakes toward McConnell's final destination, he would steer clear of a little island in the Chicoubish river. This island, the otherwise nonchalant McKibbin thinks, is haunted. Everybody up this way does.

It seems that two Frenchmen and a Canadian were attempting to cut the little island once, after a futile hunting trip. They were starving for days when rescued. Only the two Frenchmen were found. The Frenchmen claimed that the Canadian, in rage by the death of a comrade, had wandered off and disappeared. But later in the spring, Forest Ranger Barron, one of our recent hosts, found Lumiere's arms and handsaw.

McKibbin confided to me that he feared this was a case of desperate starvation—and of cannibalism. He felt it would be help for McConnell's morale any, so he decided to give that island a wide berth.

McCONNELL'S STORY SOON

McConnell has never seen this part of Canada before, and his trip yesterday provided him with his first chance to acquaint himself with the character of the forests or the geology. Much depends, of course, on the kinds of trees he encounters and whether there is hard stone, like flint, for arrow points and knives and softer stone, like sandstone, for cooking utensils.

Within a few days, however, we expect to receive the results of the first night in the wilderness, and amid the wintry blasts alone. A runner will go in for it as a designated spot and the very vigilant rangers here have agreed to it that at no time during his experiment does McConnell come in contact with the runner.
